How Much Can Men Know?

LITTLE betting on this election. Even Wall Street, having made a few small bets at 3½ to 1, is now betting brown derby hats. No matter who wins, at least 100 brokers will have new brown derbies in November.

HERBERT HOOVER will speak in Southern territory, usually solidly Democratic. Gov. Smith will speak in the farming West, where Republican officials are produced.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, who ought to know about farmers, says: "The West is solid for Hoover, not a state beyond the Mississippi for Smith, except possibly Wisconsin, which is doubtful."

RASKOB claims more states for Gov. Smith—Indiana, Illinois and Ohio—giving the Governor the biggest electoral vote any Democrat ever had.

Mr. Raskob criticizes views of his former associate, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, and says, without referring to Mr. Sloan, that great industrialists like prohibition because it keeps their men from getting whisky, but wouldn't like it if it kept them from getting champagne.

A BAD day yesterday for Ursus Horribilis, the Wall Street Bear that walks like a man but doesn't know enough to stop selling United States values short.

What happened to him was sad and mournful.

Four million shares were sold in spite of 7½ per cent "call money," and the Federal Reserve's continued encouragement of usury usurers.

"Let them hear that have ears." DON'T SELL THIS COUNTRY SHORT.

CORRIERE di NAPOLI, Dante's grave in Ravenna, has been opened, his ashes stolen.

That won't hurt Dante, or help the thief.

That thief must be a strange creature, for he could only say to himself, "Those are the ashes of Dante," telling no one.

It is man's work that counts, not his ashes.

When kings came back after the French Revolution, they scattered Voltaire's ashes to the four winds. And they picked the right man, for it was he that put an end to French kings.

They are gone. He remains. They never succeeded in scattering him while he lived. He worried them.

THREE thousand scientists, meeting in Glasgow, will discuss many things, from the speed of the electron travelling around the nucleus, inside the atom, to the origin of life and the meaning of death.

Men measure the distance of another universe, separated from us by 1,000,000 light years, and can tell you how many trillion times EACH second the electron makes a revolution in its tiny solar system.

But they know as little about life and death as they did when it was written, "The Heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork."

TWENTY-SIX women scientists will talk to the greatest scientists of the world, a good sign.

THE British association has acquired for a permanent memorial Down House, in Kent, where Darwin wrote his "Origin of Species." That would please Darwin, much interested in that house. His real monument is "The Origin of Species."

GENE TUNNEY, champion heavyweight, having visited the Louvre, says he got "the thrill of a life-time." Many Americans, dutifully wandering from the Venus of Milo in her fine big room to the Winged Victory and on to Ruben's rows of fat ladies on the floor above could not say as much.

It probably interested Tunney, who knows almost everything, to reflect that the stone palace containing the French art treasures is called "The Louvre," because it was once the King's "louvrier," a small lodge in a forest where he hunted wolves, crossing the Seine from his palace on the little island to what is now the real Paris.

EARL ROWLAND, of Wichita, Kan., in his 100-horsepower Cessna monoplane, led 37 transcontinental racers, when he landed at Columbus, O., yesterday.

This useful flight, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, with overnight stops, will, some day, seem as amusing as early railroad time tables that read, "Trains will start, weather permitting."

THE Rev. Dr. Straton, cheered by 6,000 persons in Atlanta, denounced Tammany Hall, declaring that "twice within a week attempts had been made to burn his home; once his wife ill in bed and his sleeping children narrowly escaped death."

Dr. Straton should tell that to the New York police and district attorney with proof. Thus far, arson has not been listed among Tammany Hall's weapons.

ROBERT LAFOLETTE, carried to some extent by his father's name, as the younger Cromwell was carried by the great name before him, sweeps Wisconsin's Republican primaries 2 to 1.

Besides his father's name and record, he has his own sincerity and will return to the Senate, and be useful there, if only as a "gadfly."

ROWLAND LEADS AIR DERBY TO ST. LOUIS

DAKE STILL FLYING SECOND

International News Service.

LAMBERT FLYING FIELD, ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—Still blazing the trail in the transcontinental air derby, for prizes aggregating $40,000, Earl Rowland, of Wichita, Kan., brought his Cessna monoplane to rest here at 12:22 Pittsburgh time.

Rowland left Terre Haute, the first stop today, for St. Louis, at 10:56 a. m. Pittsburgh time. He left Columbus, O., at 9:49 a. m., landing at Terre Haute at 10:37 a. m.

DAKE STILL SECOND

Robert Dake, of Pittsburgh, flying an American moth, who followed Rowland into Dresser Field, Terre Haute, also trailed Rowland into the field here.

Dake, whose plane was the second of the Class A airplanes to reach St. Louis, arrived at 10:36, just 14 minutes after Rowland.

The third plane is that of William Emery, Jr., of Bradford, Pa., a Travelair, which arrived at 10:49.

A plane believed to have been piloted by J. W. Hunt, of Moundsville, W. Va., was reported down in a field about six miles west of Rushville, Ind., but details were lacking.

ORDER BROKEN

Emery was also third into Terre Haute.

The regular order of flight was broken up, however, when Theodore W. Kenyon, in his Challenger, was the fourth pilot in landing at 10:54. Rankin, of Portland, Ore., had been the fourth man into Terre Haute.

Dake took off again at 1:06 p. m., Pittsburgh time, followed simultaneously by Theodore W. Kenyon, Smithfown, Pa.

MORE ARRIVE

James S. Charles, flying an Eagle Rock, was the fifth plane in landing at 10:52.

Eugene J. Detmer, of Tarrytown, N. Y., was sixth in his Travelair.

Tex Rankin, flying a Waco, was seventh in.

The eighth plane was a Travelair piloted by D. A. Kendall.

Dale Jackson, of St. Louis, was tenth. In his Swallow, the St. Louisan gave the cheering crowd of 2,000 its first thrill of the morning. Roaring across the field at a 125-mile pace and skimming the ground at a height of scarcely 10 feet, Jackson zipped across the concrete ring for his timing. Jackson, who was eighteenth into Terre Haute, almost doubled his pace by landing ninth here.

Rowland was accompanied by Bill Kowalski, of Detroit, a mechanic. Both men reported stormy weather from Columbus almost to Indianapolis. They said they hopped off at

As City Voters Rush to Register

HEAVY REGISTRATION EXPECTED

Mr. and Mrs. Pittsburgh are registering at the city's polling places today and they will continue to register until 11 o'clock tonight. Expectations are that today's registration will be the largest for a single day ever recorded in Pittsburgh. Here is activity in the Twenty-ninth District, Fourteenth Ward, in the polling place at Wightman and Hobart streets. Those in the photograph are Mrs. J. Klein, J. G. Rosenberg, Dr. Amshel, Sadie Goldberg, Alderman Goldstein, Mrs. M. Feitler and Mrs. J. L. Svartz.

Negligent Officers Called

Some of the 63 constables who failed to file their quarterly returns in Quarter Sessions Court yesterday, as required by law, came in with their reports today, and summonses were issued for the others.

The position was taken that the delinquents were tardy, and that there was no justification for fining and imprisoning them until a reasonable length of time—two or three days, it was suggested—was allowed them to file their reports.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner said yesterday that he would investigate the delay in filing of constables' reports. Last June he and Judge James R. MacFarlane warned the constables of the county against belated returns.

Gardner also said yesterday that he would investigate the report of Constable James J. McManus of the Second Ward that there were six speakeasies and 15 gambling establishments in his baliwick. If the constable has evidence to uphold his report the district attorney will immediately take action, he said yesterday.

RUTH ELDER'S HUSBAND TO ASK DIVORCE

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Sept. 6.—Lyle Womack today will file suit in the District Court at Ancon for a divorce from his aviatrix-motion picture star wife, Ruth Elder.

The suit will charge cruelty, but the specific details have not yet been disclosed.

The aviatrix married Womack several months before she started on her trans-Atlantic flight attempt last fall with George Haldeman.

DENIED ESTRANGEMENT

At the time of the flight she said Womack knew about her plans and was in accordance with her aviation ambitions.

When Miss Elder's plane, the American Girl, landed alongside of the Dutch oil tanker Barendrecht off the Azores Islands, Womack in the Canal Zone said he would attempt to make her give up her aviation work. He started immediately for New York and was here when she returned to a cheering reception in New York.

The meeting between them was rather strained at that time. There were rumors then of an estrangement although both denied this.

Miss Elder did not return to the Canal Zone with her husband when he went back to his engineering position there. Instead she went on a vaudeville tour for several weeks, later went abroad for a visit, and now is engaged in making one picture at Hollywood.

There have been reports she would be offered a permanent contract with one big motion picture concern.

RUTH "LIKE SOLDIER"

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 6.—"I suppose I'll have to face it like a soldier," said Ruth Elder, aviatrix, when informed here that her husband, Lyle Womack, contemplated filing suit for divorce in Ancon, Canal Zone.

Miss Elder said she had received no word of the intended action.

"I suppose he is dissatisfied at our being separated," she continued. "But he knows why I am here. I am trying to help my family. My mother and father are growing old and I have five brothers."

Miss Elder came here to work in a moving picture. It has been intimated she would be offered a contract by a large producer because of her work in the single film for which she was engaged.

Cruel?

RUTH ELDER

Ruth Elder is cruel, the suit to be filed today by her husband, Lyle Womack, in Ancon District Court, Balboa, Canal Zone, will charge as basis for divorce. There are no specific details. Womack is an engineer and married just before Ruth's trans-Atlantic attempt.

Suits Are Settled By Aimee

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, exponent of "four square" gospel, had started today on her delayed foreign evangelistic tour.

Three hours after suits against her alleging fraud in connection with real estate operations at Lake Tahoe, a California resort, had been settled out of court last night, she departed for the East amid the blaring of an Angelus Temple band and farewell songs by more than a thousand of her followers.

"I am glad it is over," said Mrs. McPherson, who declared the settlement did not concern her and that she had no connection with the sale of the real estate. "I hope now they will leave me alone for a while. I am tired of the hulabaloo."

Both sides agreed to keep secret the amount involved in the settlement, but S. S. Hahn, attorney for the plaintiffs said his clients received "dollar for dollar return on their investments."

Bootlegger Flees Liquor Laden Automobile

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 6.—Washington police have an automobile and 110 gallons of moonshine whisky, but the driver escaped. After a thrilling chase down North avenue, he suddenly pulled into a driveway and disappeared in the darkness.

HOOVER GAINS IN HIGHEST DAY'S VOTE IN STATE POLL

A substantial majority for Herbert Hoover in the highest total of daily returns received in the Pennsylvania straw vote canvass by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph increases the lead of the Republican candidate over Gov. Alfred E. Smith to a substantial figure in the total vote.

The total of ballots received during the day was 1,764. Hoover was favored by 1,049 of these voters and Smith received support from 715, giving Hoover a majority of 334 in the day's returns.

Nearly 13,500 votes have been cast to date in the Pennsylvania canvass, which is being conducted in connection with the nation-wide poll by the Hearst papers to obtain a reliable cross-section of sentiment during the presidential campaign.

Hoover was strongly supported in the latest returns from Philadelphia receiving 714 votes compared to the Smith total of 540 for the day. More Philadelphia women than men voted for Hoover and the total of women for Hoover was 159 greater than the total of women for Smith. Hoover also maintained a lead in the returns from the rural counties.

The Pennsylvania totals to date are: Hoover 7,128, including 4,392 men and 2,736 women; Smith 6,329, including 4,047 men and 2,282 women. In 1924 this vote was: Coolidge 9,179, 5,651 men and 3,528 women. Davis 1,011, 737 men and 274 women. La Follette 1,204.

LARGE REGISTRATION EXPECTED HERE TODAY

In spite of the rain that held down the number during the morning, today's registration is expected to be one of the largest for a single day in Pittsburgh's history. The big rush is expected this evening between the hours of 5 and 11, daylight saving time.

Interest in the fight for the presidency between Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith, which caused an unprecedented rush to the Courthouse to secure tax receipts during the last few days, is expected to result in a record vote here on November 6.

Delinquent Tax Collector Walter J. Christy estimated today that 20,000 tax receipts have been paid for at his office, most of them on Tuesday and yesterday. Of these 7,000 were sold to men giving their occupation as "laborer" and 8,500 to women who gave their occupation as "housewife."

In addition thousands of others paid occupation taxes at the office of County Treasurer John Francies during the months of May, June, July and August.

This is the first registration day here. There will be two more—September 18 and October 6. The latter is the last day on which taxes can be paid in order to participate in the election.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—Donie Bush's Buccaneer crew is all set to open its series with the league-leading Cardinals here today, following a day of rest in which they pepped up in no small degree.

The Pirates hope to get revenge for past humiliation at the hands of Skipper McKechnie's squad in the four-game series.

Burleigh Grimes, the Bucs' strongest mound mainstay, likely will face Jess Haines in the opening battle this afternoon, although McKechnie may decide to utilize one of his crack southpaw aces. Bill Sherdel and Clarence Mitchell have been quite effective against the Oaklanders all summer.

The Cards rest with a lead of four games over the Giants and Cubs, tied for the runner-up position, while the Reds and Pirates are practically in a deadlock for fourth place, seven games from the top.

In the event the Pirates win all four of their games with the Cards, they will still be two shy of an even break with St. Louis on the season's record.

Politician Posts Rum Bond

Henry E. Jordan, 127 South Twenty-third street, South Side politician, on his return today from a trip to California, went to the United States Commissioner's office and posted $1,000 bond for a hearing on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

While Jordan was out West the Monongahela City plant of the Monongahela Beverage Company, of which he is president, was raided on July 20 by federal prohibition agents. As a result, charges were filed against Jordan and others. A partial hearing has been granted some of the defendants, but the case is still pending.

SEES ONLY CLUE IN FATHER'S HANDS

Dr. Harry R. Dapper was assassinated to terrify his father, Henry A. Dapper, vice president, and other officers of the Fort Pitt Brewing Company, so that they would yield to the demands of a bootlegging ring which insisted on being supplied with high-powered beer, in the opinion of county officials. The murderer is a hired gunman, they believe, known to the criminal element in the Hill district.

This is the theory on which District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner is working as he pursues his investigation of the mysterious killing of the young physician at a lonely spot in Mifflin township on the night of August 20. Dr. Dapper was slain in his automobile in the presence of his father by a man who called the physician from his home "to visit a sick woman." The murderer fled in the doctor's car.

District Attorney Gardner admitted the theory as to the motive for the crime had little to substantiate it, but defended its plausibility by pointing to other killings committed by bootleggers in pursuance of their traffic.

MANUFACTURE BEER

Gardner called attention to the fact that the Fort Pitt Brewing Company was producing near-beer and that beer with high alcoholic content must first be made, the beverage later being made innocuous by being put through a process of dealcoholization.

The District Attorney repeated his conviction that the elder Dapper is concealing information relating to the murder, possibly through fear.

Gardner declared minute scrutiny of the slain man's record and habits of life had failed to reveal any rea-

Acquit 2 Of Taking Fines

By producing a receipt from Allegheny county, signed by Joseph G. Armstrong, Commissioner, for fines they are alleged to have pocketed, former Justice of the Peace James M. Bossart and Constable James Rue proved their innocence of a charge of larceny and extortion on which they were tried in court today.

In obedience to binding instructions by Judge Elder W. Marshall the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. Bossart is now burgess of Oakmont.

Andy Zambo, Forward township butcher, prosecutor in the case, alleged that in March, 1921, he was arrested by Rue and fine $100 by Bossart for selling liquor without a license. Three visitors arrested in the raid forefeited $20 each by failing to appear for a hearing. Zambo accused the two defendants of stealing the $160. The records of the county controller's office as well as County Commissioner Armstrong's receipt showed they had turned the money in.

THREE HELD IN TWINS' BURIAL FREED

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 6.—John Hlatky, Monessen steel worker, and his two daughters, Elizabeth, 15, and Margaret, 14, held in connection with the finding of the bodies of twin infants buried in the yard of their home 10 days ago, were released by order of court today.

The girls were sent home, but the father was given into the custody of the sheriff pending an investigation into the finding of the bodies of twins, buried a year ago.

The court held that the commonwealth had failed to prove that the children were alive when born. Hlatky had been held on a charge of murder and the children on charges of being accessories to murder. The wife and mother was released from Memorial Hospital, Monongahela, today and tonight will be arraigned on a murder charge before an alderman in Monessen.

DERBY TRAILERS STAY DOWN

MIDDLETOWN, Pa., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Three Class A contestants in the air derby from New York to Los Angeles still were here today, rain preventing their proposed takeoff for McKeesport and Columbus to continue in the race. They are Wilford Gerbracht, Travelair, held up by piston trouble; S. P. Gilley, Curtiss Robin monoplane, delayed by magneto trouble, and H. A. Speer, International, delayed by motor [illegible]. A fourth plane which was to remain here yesterday was mantled and the pilot, H. Davis, has withdrawn contest.

CITY'S MILK SHIPPERS TO TALK FALL PRICES

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 6.—Several thousand dairymen from Western Pennsylvania and Northeastern Ohio meet here tomorrow to discuss production and prices for fall and winter. P. S. Brenneman, of Jefferson, O., will preside. The dairymen represent 17,000 members of the Co-Operative Sales Company which supplies Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Youngstown with milk.

DAKE IS STILL SECOND

Columbus at 7:50 a. m. in a driving rain.

Weather conditions were extremely bad for the take off at Columbus because of rain, fog and poor visibility. The take off was postponed nearly three hours because of a continual downpour of rain, which did not let up until after 7 o'clock.

The field was cut from 37 to 31 planes; six fliers were eliminated in this class yesterday.

DELAY CLASS B RACE

ROOSEVELT FIELD, NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The Class B and C races in the New York-Los Angeles air derby were postponed today until tomorrow at 6 a. m., on account of rain, fog and low ceiling.

They will start tomorrow at about the same hour if the weather permits Class B to get away on time.

5 PILOTS WITHDRAW

After the races were called off, five pilots withdrew from the Class B race in protest against six planes which they charge have racing wings. The disputed planes, approved in tests by the racing committee, are the two Lairds piloted by "Speed" Holman, of St. Paul, and E. E. Ballough, Chicago, and four Wacos manned by John H. Livingston, of Monmouth, Ill.; John R. Wood, of Wausau, Wis.; Stuart Aver, of Milwaukee, and Charles W. Meyers, of Troy, O.

Those who withdrew were: G. C. Quick, of Wichita, Kan., Cessna plane; C. W. Mayse, of Tuscon, Ariz., Waco plane; Francis Bowhan, of Wichita, Cessna plane; Al Lotzenberger, Pittsburgh, Cessna plane, and R. J. Merritt, New Castle, Pa., Ryan plane.

Kohler's Lead Is 25,000

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 6.—Walter J. Kohler's lead over Congressman Joseph D. Beck, for the Republican nomination for governor was placed at approximately 25,000 votes today, pending official tabulation of returns from the 2,760 precincts in Wisconsin.

Last minute returns continued to pile up the total accumulated by Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., for the Republican senatorial nomination to succeed himself. With but 103 precincts missing, LaFollette had 300,961 votes to George Mead's 152,946.

Kohler's defeat of Congressman Beck is the second time that Senator LaFollette has been unsuccessful in his efforts to nominate a gubernatorial candidate with his indorsement. LaFollette backed Elkern in 1926, and Beck in yesterday's primary.

Both Gov. Zimmerman, incumbent, and Mayor George W. Mead of Wisconsin Rapids, had the indorsement of the Anti-Saloon League. The wet indorsement was split between Kohler and Beck.

Nearly all the counties that were carried by Zimmerman in 1926 went to Kohler and Beck. The organization which the governor created in 1926 collapsed like a bellows.

FEAR TONG WAR AFTER KILLING

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Fear of impending tong war halted activities in Oakland's Chinatown last night as a result of discovery of the body of L. C. Yee, 35, wealthy Chinese merchant of Oakland, San Francisco and Reno, at headquarters of the Hip Sing Tong here.

Yee, shot in the face three times, had been dead several hours when the body was found. Five guns and a quantity of ammunition were seized in the place. Heavy police guards were thrown into the district.

MAN STRUCK BY PATROL SUES CITY FOR $20,000

Pietro Rifugiato, of 608 Ardmore boulevard, Wilkinsburg, today, brought suit against the city of Pittsburgh for $20,000 for injuries received when he was hit by a police patrol on September 27, 1926. Rifugiato alleges he suffered injuries to the left hip, leg and shoulder. The accident occurred when Rifugiato was en route to work, he avers.

GARDNER SAYS RUM RING SLEW DAPPER

REPUTATION CLEAN

"We find Dr. Dapper's reputation clean in every respect," said Gardner. "He was opposed to prescribing narcotics and practically never prescribed whisky. He had only a small amount of money in the bank. He had no bad habits or bad associates, and was known in St. John's Hospital as a model interne.

"Unfortunately he kept the record of his patients in his head, so that we have been unable to make a proper search for either an insane or jealous person resulting from his practice. From what we have learned it seems fairly improbable that there was any such motive involved."

The Fort Pitt Brewing Company, involved in Gardner's statement, has its plant in Sharpsburg. The officers are: President, Samuel J. Grenet; vice president, Henry A. Dapper; treasurer and secretary, C. C. Reeder; directors, the aforementioned officers, with A. Breitweiser, John A. Fugassi, W. J. Kopp and M. F. Shanahan.

GRENET ONE OF "167"

Grenet, president of the company, is a well-known North Side politician. He is one of the 167 persons recently indicted by the federal grand jury in connection with an alleged rum conspiracy. Fugassi, one of the directors, also is prominent in politics. Formerly a police court magistrate, he now is county road superintendent.

"We have reached the point in the investigation of the murder," said Gardner, "where only one theory remains to be run down. While it seems far-fetched it has been suggested that the motive was terrorism. The son may have been killed in order to frighten the father into heeding the demands of 'hi-jackers,' who wanted illegal beverages.

"Attention must be paid to this theory because of the fact that the father is engaged in the brewing business, and that real beer must be brewed before near-beer can be made. Lawless persons might be attempting to terrorize him into breaking the law by furnishing them with real beer.

TERRORISM WEAPON

"We know that terrorism is a weapon used by bootleggers in forcing people to buy and sell their illegal wares. We know that a number of death rides were murders committed by bootleggers in order to frighten the friends of the slain men into dealing with them.

"We have the theory that this murder was committed by a hired gunman, and believe there are certain persons in the Hill district of Pittsburgh who might be persuaded to inform us of their suspicions as to who that gunman was.

"STRANGE" NARRATIVE

"So far as the elder Dapper is concerned, I cannot help but feel that he knows much that he is not telling. I hope I am not doing him an injustice, but the story which he has told repeatedly seems a strange one.

"His motive for concealment, if he has one, would be either that he knows the identity of the slayer and for some personal reason does not wish to divulge it, or else that he is frightened into silence by fear for his own life. Mr. Dapper does not impress me as being very much frightened, and he certainly put up a good fight against the slayer, according to his story.

"The strangest part of his narrative is that he cannot identify the man or give us any inkling of his appearance, although the man got out of the car, helped Mr. Dapper into the rear seat, and rode all those miles immediately in front of him.

"Even stranger is Dapper's contention that during all the time he was with his son while his son was conscious and able to talk he never asked his son who the killer was. He admits it would have been a natural question, but denies that he asked it."

District Attorney Gardner said he would welcome any "tips" from the public that might help to run down the slayer.

The elder Dapper has offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of the murderer. A $250 reward has been offered by the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

"TOLD ALL"—DAPPER, SR.

The elder Dapper called on Gardner today to repeat that he had told "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth," when questioned yesterday.

"My account of the murder may sound incredible," he said. "But it is true, and I can't change it. I asked my son no questions about the murderer after he had been shot, because I was intent on getting him to the hospital, and far more concerned over his condition than the apprehension of the murderer."

KANSAS CITY FLIER IS FORCED DOWN

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Harry Snedley, of Kansas City, piloting plane No. 23, an Eaglerock, and accompanied by Dr. George L. Bennett, also of Kansas City, in the trans-continental air derby was forced down in a field about 20 miles south of here en route from Columbus, Ohio, to Terre Haute. A blown cylinder head caused the landing, and according to Snedley they will be unable to continue.

Pick Ticket For Farm Labor

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The executive committee of the Farmer-Labor party, here to select a national ticket for the November election, expected to name the candidates today upon receipt of replies to inquiries, if not offers, sent to unnamed individuals yesterday.

Committee members declined to reveal the nature of the inquiries or to whom they were addressed. They were confident, however, the information they sought would be forthcoming in time for the morning session and predicted nominations would be made then.

Weather Conditions.

A ridge of high pressure, Northfield, Vt., 30.42, extends southwestward to Texas and New Mexico, while a trough of low pressure extends from Alberta southward to Arizona.

Pressure continues relatively low in the east Gulf region, and falling northward to the Upper Ohio valley, with the rain area now attending into Southern Pennsylvania and Ohio. Rainfall in excess of one inch fell at Asheville, Lynchburg, Raleigh, Washington and Atlantic City. A very unusual fall was reported from Hatteras, 9.32 inches in the last 24 hours.

Temperatures have risen in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, the northern plains, the upper lakes and Upper Ohio valley; elsewhere little change occurred.

The weather has been generally fair, except in the middle and South Atlantic states, the southern Appalachian region and portions of the Upper Ohio valley.

RUM RING'S ARSENAL TRACED IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—District Attorney John Monaghan said today that he had discovered evidence linking Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, alleged "King of Philadelphia Bootleggers," with Edward S. Goldberg, proprietor of a store which deals in bulletproof vests, machine guns and other weapons.

This was the latest development in the grand jury investigation of Philadelphia's underworld activities which Mr. Monaghan said had established an alliance between the police and the rum ring.

HELD AS PERJURER

Arrested last night on a charge of perjury after he had testified before the grand jury, Goldberg was released this morning in heavy bail. Records and books of the Military Sales Company, of which he is the head, were seized and impounded for the jury. It deals in military goods, bullet proof vests, machine guns and other weapons used in gang warfare.

The district attorney said that when receipts for bullet-proof vests were found on Petey Ford and Frankie Bailey, gangsters, once arrested in connection with the slaying of John Bricker and the wounding of Mickey Duffy at the Club Cadix, Goldberg told City Hall detectives that the vests had been paid for by Max Hoff.

Ford and Bailey, who are serving prison sentences for highway robbery and aggravated assault on a policeman, were questioned by the grand jury last week.

"KILLING UTENSILS"

The Bricker-Duffy shooting long has been regarded by the authorities as a high light in the series of gang murders and as connected with the more recent slayings of Hugh McLoon and Daniel J. O'Leary, which brought about the present investigation.

The murder was said to have marked the beginning of a war for control of the alcohol business by rival bootleggers.

"A large number of machine guns were found in Goldberg's place," Mr. Monaghan said today. "This man has conducted his business defiantly. Weapons of the most deadly character, such as machine guns and sawed-off shotguns, have been sold with no record, apparently, of their final disposition.

"It has been known for a long time that arsenals supplying gunmen existed here and it is time to find out exactly what is going on."

The prosecutor said that Max Hassel, of Reading, Pa., known to the police as the "Beer Baron," would be summoned before the grand jury. Records of the Glenwood Distilling Company have been seized. Police officials and detectives believed to have fraternized with bootleggers have been summoned before the grand jury.

WOMEN TO OPEN HOOVER DRIVE

Republican women leaders of the county will open campaign activity for Herbert Hoover tomorrow afternoon at a meeting in the Hotel Henry headquarters, Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier, Republican county vice chairman, who called the meeting, urged all women of the party to attend.

A writ directing Sheriff Robert H. Braun to call a special election November 6 to fill the place in the Fortieth district left vacant by the death of Senator Edward Pfischner has been issued by Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James. The 440 members of the Republican county committee in the district will select that party's nominee, and the Democratic candidate will be named by the [illegible] executive committee.

KNOX PICTURED AS CRASH HERO, JUDGE FREES HIM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—An oration by his attorney, picturing Philander C. Knox, Jr., as a hero, who swerved his automobile into another car to avoid hitting a group of children, helped to win the son of the former Secretary of State an acquittal in the Washington traffic court on charges of reckless driving.

"Medals should be pinned on the breast of this man," declared Knox's counsel, "and he should be given a certificate of careful driving."

Judge Isaac R. Hitt immediately granted the attorney's motion for dismissal of the case without even calling Knox to the stand to testify.

HUSBAND DEAD, WIFE ON ELECTION BOARD; NO TRIAL

The case against Jacob Segal, 45, of 1810 Center avenue, charged with false pretense, was called for trial in Criminal Court today—and then it was learned that Segal had been dead for two years.

A similar case against his wife, Rose Segal, was called—and her counsel told the court that she was serving today on a registration board in the Hill district.

Attorney Charles Reichman presented an undertaker's certificate to prove that Segal had been buried in Pittsburgh, December 23, 1926. With his wife, Segal was accused of selling Ohio real estate which he didn't own to three Tarentum citizens.

Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park moved before Judge James B. Drew that, inasmuch as Mrs. Segal was occupied with election matters today, her trial be deferred.

Glassport and Clairton :-: County Exercises Open Two New Bridges :-: McKeesport and Duquesne

BRIDGES
Two long-needed river spans, the Glassport and Clairton Bridge and that connecting Duquesne and McKeesport, today are open for public use after formal exercises. Above is a view of the Glassport-Clairton Bridge and the crowd that witnessed its opening.

BARRIER
These five misses were chosen as special representatives of Glassport and Clairton to open the new bridge to traffic. They are June D'Almaine, Eleanor Payne, Betty Schrontz, Priscilla Jane Beatty and Virginia Barr Strathearn.

MAYOR'S CONVENTION
Only one in this group has never been chief executive of a municipality. They are (left to right) Burgess Charles E. Redman, Glassport; Mayor W. B. Farnsworth, Clairton; State Senator M. G. Leslie; County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock, both former Pittsburgh mayors; Mayor James S. Crawford, Duquesne, and Mayor George H. Lysle, McKeesport.

TRAFFIC
Duquesne and McKeesport each named two representatives as the "ribbon-clipping" squad. They are Loretta Marie Zwingler and Jane Patricia Overholt, McKeesport, and Florence Davis and Jane Conlin Kasten, Duquesne.

CROWD

Horses Primed -:- Pittsburgh Hunt Prepares for Annual Fall Show -:- Steeplechase Action

ANNUAL SHOW

Charles Flaccus, Jr., up here on "Prince Charley," will ride in the Pittsburgh Hunt's third annual fall show, September 15, Otesaga Farm.

FOX CHAPEL

Otesaga is in the Fox Chapel road district, near Aspinwall, and is the headquarters of the Hunt. "High Laddie," Herbert G. Lytle's horse shown here with Henry Stauffer, will take part in the show.

HURDLES

Mary Lou Paull will probably take "Highball" over the hurdles in the coming show just as she does here. Miss Paull is daughter of George Paull, vice president of Pittsburgh Hunt. Other officers are Charles F. Colbert, Jr., president, and Herbert G. Lytle, secretary and treasurer.

BARRIER

Over this barrier springs "Jungo," ridden by Herbert G. Lytle. "Jungo" will perform in the Hunt's annual show. Otesaga is on Mr. Lytle's estate, 20 minutes' drive from downtown Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGHERS GIVE HOOVER FUND $46,000

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Hoover managers have evidently found Pittsburgh to be one of the most favorable fields for the collection of presidential campaign funds.

The latest report filed with the Senate Campaign Funds Committee by the Republican National Committee reveals that a new list of 30 Pittsburghers contributed a total of $46,000 during the month of August toward defraying expenses of the national organization. This is in addition to a similar amount previously acknowledged from the city.

NO MELLON GIFT YET

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, W. L. Mellon, Senator David A. Reed and a number of other affluent and influential party leaders of the city are yet to be heard from, and their contributions are expected to swell the total further. Secretary Mellon has been recorded in the past as having donated at least $50,000 himself.

The largest single contributor on the new list released for publication this morning was shown to be H. B. Rust, while there were several credited with $5,000 and $4,000 contributions. In making public its latest report the committee, for convenience, included only those donations which amounted to $100 and more. Following is the list of Pittsburghers in full:

John F. Casey, $1,000; Edwin M. Herr, $1,000; Mrs. B. F. Jones, Jr., $5,000; William L. Jones, Jr., $2,500; Edgar J. Kaufmann, $1,000; Mrs. Alex Laughlin, Jr., $5,000; G. M. Laughlin, Jr., $1,000; Irwin B. Laughlin, $1,000; J. B. Laughlin, $4,000; Nin McQuillen, $1,000; O. M. Reif, $1,000; E. T. Whiter, $100; Raymond Willey, $1,000; Horner D. Williams, $500; R. H. Youngman, $1,000; H. B. Rust, $10,000; E. W. Mudge, $1,000; Ellsworth Martin, $300; W. K. Charlton, $250; C. V. Davis, $250; Harry Dietrick, $200; L. T. Kessler, $250; W. Bruce McKibbon, $250; A. D. Dresser, $200; F. I. McNeil, Jr., $250; George H. Young, $250; John D. Woods, $200; W. H. Prince, $250; C. M. Percum, $250; W. H. Matthews, $100, and T. R. Evans, $1,000.

Republican managers appear not to have extended their drive thus far to other cities of Pennsylvania, for the report failed to include any substantial contribution outside Pittsburgh.

$312,216 EXPENDED

At the end of August a total of $312,216 had been expended in the advancement of the Hoover presidential campaign, with more than double that amount—$658,418— received in contributions, the report of J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican National Committee shows. In the month of August, $560,039 was received from contributors, while $263,899 was disbursed.

During the month, contributions of $25,000 each were received from nine donors, including Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation and W. C. Durant, president of Durant Motors, Inc. In addition it was announced that on September 1, an equal sum was received from a third influential figure in the manufacture of automobiles—Walter Chrysler. This, however was not listed in the report.

The report was made public without comment, although general satisfaction was apparent at the party headquarters. Copies were filed with the clerk of the House and with the Senate and House campaign funds committees.

Has No Job, Declares John

International News Service.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 6.—John Coolidge, son of the President and America's own "Prince of Wales," is here today to spend several days with his grandmother, Mrs. Elmira Goodhue, mother of Mrs. Coolidge, and a patient at the Cooley Dickinson Hospital since last December.

When he arrived here last night, he denied that he had accepted a position in the electrical works of Gov. Trumbull, at Hartford, Conn. Young Coolidge came here from New York after being secretly whisked away from inquisitive crowds and inquiring reporters upon his arrival in the metropolis yesterday.

According to a rumor current here, the President's son plans to meet Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of Gov. Trumbull, upon her arrival in New York from Paris early in September.

WALES AND BROTHER OFF FOR BIG GAME IN AFRICA

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The Prince of Wales and his younger brother, the Duke of Gloucester, are sailing from Marseilles tonight to hunt big game in Africa, and also to spread imperial good will.

Sailing from Marseilles, the prince and his brother will go to Alexandria and then to Cairo, and from there by motor to Ismailiya on the Suez Canal. Here the British India steamer Malda will embark them for Mombassa, and there they will entrain for the interior of Kenya.

The trip for the Prince of Wales holds heavy burdens of official duties. It is another one of those empire building drives in which the heir to the throne is already an experienced campaigner. He is bursting with speeches, prepared for reviews and inspections and ready with the smiles that have spread his popularity widely.

A big shooting expedition has been arranged for Nairobi in October. After that Kenya, Tanganyika, Uganda and Rhodesia will welcome the royal visitors. They will spend Christmas as guests of the governor at Capetown.

ROBBED BY ARMED PAIR ON STREET NEAR HOME

Held up by two armed men who stopped him in Forty-second street, near his home, Frank J. Pollui, of 333 Forty-second street, was robbed of $17 early this morning. Pollui told police that one of the men kept him "covered" with the revolver while the other searched his clothing.

"SPRINKLER INSPECTOR" GRABS STORE'S $1,000

MEADVILLE, Pa., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—While supposedly inspecting a sprinkler system in the John J. Shryock Company's store here, a thief seized $1,000 in cash and checks and escaped in an automobile bearing an Ohio license plate.

JANITOR FOUND DEAD IN CHURCH AT MERCER

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 6.—A victim of heart disease, John Brooks, 69, janitor of the Methodist Church, was found dead in that edifice by women of the Aid Society on their arrival for a meeting. Brooks had been dead an hour, it is stated.

VARE PROBERS TOLD OF TAX RECEIPTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The mysterious John Kilkeary, who left tax receipts at the Athalia home, made frantic efforts to recover them after Mrs. John O. Miller, of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters, had discovered their existance, Mrs. Miller testified yesterday at the hearing on the Vare-Wilson contest, which was resumed here by the Waterman sub-committee of the Senate.

Counsel for Vare objected to the testimony of Mrs. Miller, who told of how the 58 receipts had been left at the home so that girls could qualify for voting. Her testimony was corroborated in many instances by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, of 1336 Shady avenue, Pittsburgh, Allegheny county chairman of the same organization.

Mrs. Miller said that tax receipts orders in the same handwriting as those issued to the home, were issued to Sol Goldstein. She said that she questioned Samuel D. Foster, county treasurer, about the irregularity, but he said that it was impossible to tell that all bore the same signature as the orders are presented to different clerks at different windows.

No further hearings will be held until September 18 when William B. Wilson will be given an opportunity to present additional witnesses. The following day Senator-elect William S. Vare will be given a similar privilege.

SECOND OF THREE HURT IN SCAFFOLD FALL DIES

The second victim of a scaffold fall at the Thirty-first Street Bridge died today. Sherman Gill, 42, of 1612 Irwin avenue, succumbed in St. Francis Hospital of a fractured spine. Leonard W. Redic, 47, of 817 Southern avenue, died three hours after the accident. Harry McCarter, 42, of 1240 Monterey street, is still in the hospital in a critical condition, suffering a fractured skull and internal injuries.

SCIENTIST SURE SOUL EXISTS

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Man has a soul, in the belief of Sir William Bragg, Nobel prize winner and new president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

In his inaugural address, Sir William directly contradicted the view expressed to the association last year by its then president, Sir Arthur Keith, who rejected the idea of an after-life.

"Science is not setting forth to destroy the soul," said Sir William, shaking his finger at the 3,000 scientists, "but to keep the body and soul together."

Some persons, he asserted, thought that modern science would destroy reverence and faith. He did not know that could be said of the student "who stands daily in the presence of what seems to him to be infinite."

47 BECOME CITIZENS IN WHEELING COURT

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Federal Judge W. E. Baker admitted 24 aliens to citizenship, making a total of 47 admitted in two days.

BEATEN MOTHER PLEADS "DON'T PUNISH MY SON"

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. Minnie Hanke, 85, in a critical condition from a blow over her head, pleaded with police yesterday not to punish her son, even if she should die.

"A mother should close her eyes to the wrongs her child does her," she whispered through her bandages.

The son, Emil, is held on an assault-to-commit-murder charge. Police said he beat his mother to gain possession of her home. Her skull was fractured.

BANNED

Hoover or Smith—it makes no difference to state highway patrolmen when it comes to enforcing the motor laws. Stickers are banned by the state motor code and Corp. A. G. Wissinger, Greensburg, is shown above explaining to this Hoover booster why he should take the sticker off his windshield.

BRAKES?

If your brakes are not working properly, one of these efficient patrolmen may find it necessary to tell you about it. No, the officer did not lecture this young lady—he just told her that her brakes are "o. k".

VISIBLE?

License plates must be visible 300 feet away from the machine. Part of the state highway patrolman's work is to establish test stations and check equipment and operation of motor vehicles. "We aim to educate rather than prosecute," they say. The motorist above is being told his license plate is hidden by the bumper.

REST

After a hard day's work, the boys relax in their comfortable troop headquarters on Jack's Hill, Greensburg. Troop B, commanded by Capt. David E. Miller, consists of 27 sub-stations and a motorcycle repair shop unit. Left to right, comfortably esconced before the fireplace, are Patrolman Larry Moore and Sergt. R. K. Hollowbush.

JARDINE ON FARM NEEDS

WARRANT FOR THOMPSON PLACED IN SHERIFF'S HANDS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 6.—Heirs of the Messmore estate insisting upon action, J. V. Thompson, once reputed to have been worth $70,000,000, is being sought by Sheriff Thomas Aubrey, who has warrants for his imprisonment in the Fayette county jail until he is able to raise about $400,000.

Sheriff Aubrey admitted yesterday that he had the warrants and was "looking for Thompson."

The first warrant was issued some time ago, but then it was reported that Mr. Thompson was in ill health and a patient at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. Later he was reported seen in Uniontown, but no action was taken.

Last Saturday was the time set for the payment of about $200,000 in the estate of John Niccolls, father of the Princess of Thurn and Taxis.

When that date passed another warrant was said to have been issued through the office of O. Frank Ruse, clerk of Orphans Court. This warrant, with the one in the Messmore case, passed into the hands of Sheriff Aubrey.

If, in the meantime, a proposed coal deal can be closed and sufficient money raised to meet the obligations, the warrant becomes void. If not, apparently no further defenses stand between Thompson and jail.

NO REVOLT ON, SECRETARY DECLARES

SALT LAKE, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Improved business methods applied by the farmers themselves are needed by the agricultural industry, William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, believes.

"There is no farm problem in the generally accepted sense and there is no farm revolt on now," the Secretary said in an interview here last night. "The whole thing sums up to a need of better business methods in marketing agricultural products.

"There is a tremendous amount of uneconomical marketing of farm products. On the other hand, great improvements have been made in production. Better machinery, better and modern ideas have been put to work effectively in increasing production. Statistics show that production capacity per man has increased 20 per cent in the last 12 years. But in the marketing we are practically as far behind as we were 40 years ago."

Mr. Jardine pointed to the automobile industry as an example of producers devoting as much study to marketing as to production.

"All that I am arguing for is that agriculture take a leaf from the book of experience of big business," he said. "We must eliminate the waste between the farmer and his market and increase the profit to the producer without increasing the cost to the consumer. There must be organized competitive selling of the main commodities produced on the farms.

"The parasites of agricultural marketing must be weeded out and able and efficient men left to conduct the marketing end."

POPPY SALES BRING ARREST

Dr. Arthur H. Gaston, 46, 518 Berwin avenue, Brookline, accused of selling poppies in the East End without authorization, will be arraigned in Frankstown Avenue Police Court tomorrow morning. A hearing on a suspicious person charge was postponed today. Dr. Gaston was released on his own recognizance.

Dr. Gaston, a World War veteran, said he took to selling poppies because he was in poor financial circumstances. John Collins, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, appeared at the police station today and said the poppy is registered in the patent office at Washington as the insignia of drives for aid for disabled veterans.

BORDER STATES POLLED

SMITH LEADING NOW ONLY IN MISSOURI

By CHARLES N. WHEELER
Noted Political Analyst

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—The battle for the four border states of Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri and Oklahoma is warming up to the hair-curling stage, with prohibition and religion cutting cross currents through all party lines.

Today's tabulation of the nation-wide poll by the Hearst newspapers shows Gov. Smith out in front in Missouri only, with the figures largly confined to St. Louis.

Mr. Hoover's lead in Maryland in beginnig to show signs of solidarity and a small but steady growth that seems to indicate a clear drift to the G. O. P. ticket, outside of Baltimore.

The totals yesterday were: Hoover, 10,196; Smith, 8,294. Mr Hoover got 7,733 men votes to 6,681 for Smith, and 2,463 women votes to 1,613 for the New York governor.

If Gov. Smith should carry the state, according to both the pres-poll and reports from the field of workers, the job will have to be done from this time forth, as today Maryland should be classed as pro-Hoover.

It's a horse race in the Blue Grass state, with more independent voting this time than in years.

What gives the Republican chiefs much encouragement is that Gov. Smith is not showing a pronounced lead in the larger cities, and more particularly in the two metropolitan centers.

Eighteen counties, furnishing a fairly representative gross section of the state's population, have been canvassed, the totals being: Hoover, 3,452; Smith, 3,222. The Republican candidate leads from the cities and twons, wheras the rural districts, only touched thus far, all seem to show a comparatively solid trend to the Republican ticket.

Calls Rum Issue

While vehement religious feeling is reported from several sections of the state, Col. P. H. Callahan, the widely known varnish king of Louisville, is doing what he can to show that opposition to Gov. Smith among the old-time Democrats is not on the issue of Romanism but rum.

Col. Callahan, one of the foremost dry spokesmen, is one of the distinguished Catholic laymen of the country, a life-long friend and supporter of the late William Jennings Bryan. For years he has opposed what he considered Tammany stood for. According to the Colonel, Kentucky may go for Hoover, because of his supporting the Eighteenth amendent.

Kentucky should be retained for the present at least, in the doubtful column.

Switch in Missouri

What is giving the G. O. P. strategists pause in Missouri is the way Gov. Smith is outdistancing Mr. Hoover in Republican St. Louis. The Smith lead is about three to two. The St. Louis vote:

HOOVER			SMITH
Men.	Wom.	Total	Men.	Wom.	Total
1,642	1,501	3,143	2,818	1,590	4,408

Smith also is ahead in the total vote of the state with 5,682 to 4,500. Outside of the damp spots, Mr. Hoover is out in front. Rural districts in St. Louis county outside of the city proper show Hoover running aout 2 to 2 over Smith, and better than that in some of the outstate cities.

Joplin, for example, gives Hoover 565 to 232 for Smith.

What seems to be happening in the Show-Me state is that the Republican wet cities are veering toward Gov. Smith while the Democratic dry reaches all over the state are switching to Mr. Hoover.

But there is nothing to indicate definitely where Missouri will land It is doubtful.

Oaklahoma, likewise, remains doubtful. As in all other border states, rum and religion are smashing party lines. The poll has just got under way there. The first tabulation give Mr. Hoover the lead with 489 to 335 for Smith.

AUTO RAMS FREIGHT; ONE DEAD, THREE HURT

RIDGWAY, Pa., Sept. 6.—When an automobile ran head-on into a freight train, Miss Viola Berquist, Reynoldsville, was fatally injured. She was riding with three friends from Reynoldsville.

The wreck ocurred on the track of the Shawmut Railroad at Brockport. Miss Berquist died at Dubois Hospital. She was a student nurse at Staten Island Hospital in New York. Arthur Johnson, driver, broke his arm. The other occupants of the car, Eugene Berquist and Miss Margaret Pegnetter were seriously but not fatally injured.

STRIKE BOMBER HURTS WOMAN

KENOSHA, Wis., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Bombers rocked the northwest section of Kenosha last night with the thirteenth blast of their dynamite campaign, injuring a woman.

The home of Chauncey Pitts was the new bomb target. It was partly demolished. Pitts, a union tinner, has no direct connection with the Allen strike. His wife, however, is an inspector at the knitting plant.

Say "good-bye" to FOOT ACHES AND PAINS
This shoe makes good on all its "foot comfort" promises

THIS offers you foot comfort such as you have never known before.

A way that conquers torturing pain . . . that banishes foot weakness and dull, dragging arches . . . that brings quick and lasting relief to even the most chronic sufferers.

The real trouble is that feet were not made for shoes—shoes were made for feet, and thus, wearing hit or miss shoes, foot ailments and other weaknesses come gradually upon us.

Our feet may look all right. Feel fairly comfortable. No corns or bunions. Nature certainly can put up with a lot of abuse. Then all of a sudden we feel her warning of a weakened condition.

Dull aches. Sharp, stinging pains. That tired feeling at the end of every day.

Nature is simply taking her toll for the way you have mistreated your feet. And if not taken care of immediately, there is no telling where the danger will lead.

It is for exactly such conditions and circumstances that Ground Grippers are made. Here is a shoe designed to correct foot ailments in a simple, scientific way . . . the way that Nature requires.

Ground Grippers exclusively have:

1. The Flexible Arch, which allows the foot muscles to exercise and thus strengthen themselves with every step. This flexibility makes the shoe close-fitting and comfortable, easing the foot while assisting the arch to absorb the shocks of walking.

2. The Straight Inner Line, permitting the toes to function with a free, strong, gripping action.

3. The Patented Rotor Heel, which helps you toe straight ahead, the normal, natural way.

Back of every pair of Ground Grippers are twenty-five years of promises fulfilled. Back of every Ground Gripper claim are testimonials of thousands of satisfied wearers.

If you have ever been disappointed in so-called "comfort shoes" . . . if your desire for foot rest, relaxation and correction has not been satisfied . . . then we most earnestly ask that you try Ground Grippers. Notice how they ease your feet. How comfortable they feel. How you gradually say "good-bye" to foot aches and pains.

At the nearest Ground Gripper store is a man who will understand your feet and your shoe problems. Give him the chance to help you.

BAPTIST FUND IS MILLION SHORT

MISSION BOARD BROKE AS TREASURER VANISHES

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist convention today had announced itself unable to pay current salaries due to the discovery of a $1,000,000 shortage in accounts of Clintons Carnes, treasurer, who disappeared August 15.

Developments piled high yesterday as a special church committee headed by Dr. C. W. Daniel, of Richmond, Va., dug deeper into the affairs of the board and Carnes, before taking temporary adjournment.

The committee was able to announce the approximate size of the shortage after it was found that Carnes kept a secret file in which were entered special loan transactions with more than 150 banks in the South, transactions which never came under the scrutiny of regular auditors or of the church.

First court action was announced when Walter R. Brown, Baptist layman and lawyer, intervening as a church contributor, obtained a temporary injunction returnable September 29, against several possible sources of funds to rehabilitate the board.

Criminal Court proceedings were indicated in the announced determination of Assistant Solicitor General Ed A. Stephens to begin grand jury proceedings against the mission treasurer as soon as practicable. He began conferences with the joint church committee for that purpose.

Meanwhile there was little to indicate what Carnes could have done with the money he allegedly obtained during the period of the accruing shortage, which was estimated to be several years, possibly eight. Nor was there any word of the missing treasurer, who vanished after telling his chauffeur he would not be at his home for dinner on August 15 because of a business trip to Raleigh, N. C. He was never seen at Raleigh or elsewhere, so far as has been determined.

Allen, pastor of the Grace Methodist Protestant Church of Sharpsburg, yesterday was unamiously re-elected president of the Pittsburgh conference, Methodist Protestant Church. His election followed the opening of the ninty-fifth annual sesion of the conference, which will remain in session until next Monday.

Alll other present officers were also re-elected unamiously, they are:

Secretary, Rev. A. J. Green, Sheraden; journal clerk, Charles Moody Smith, New Brihton; treasurer, the Rev Harry M. Patterson, Fordyce; statistical secretary, the Rev. O. W. Bolton, Dunbar; stationing committee, the Rev. Dr. J. S. Leland, Pittsburgh; the Rev. F. C. Viele, Waynesburg; the Rev. M. L. Conway, and the Rev. Harry M. Reeves, Beaver Falls. The Rev. H. K. Sparr, now living in Greensboro, N. C., presided over the conference during the election of officers. He is one of the oldest ministers attending the gathering, being slightly past 80.

The Pittsburgh conference includes all Methodist Protestant churches in the Pittsburgh district as far west as Youngstown, O. south to Fairmont, W. Va., and east to the Allegheny mountains.

It is one of the oldest conferences in the United States.

ELECTION JOBS SOUGHT

Petitions for the appointment of election officers to fill vacancies before the presidential election in November are rapidly being filed in the Quarter Sessions Court.

Bessie Causer petitioned to be named minority inspector for the Third district of the Second Ward, Duquesne, to succeed Mildred Montgomery, who has moved from the district.

Daniel Verona asked to be appointed judge of the Fourth district of the Third Ward, to succeed Harry Martorella, moved.

William Thomas petitioned to be judge of the Thirty-third district of the Thirteenth Ward, to succeed David D. Evans, deceased.

Assistant assessors were appointed as follows:

Mrs. Mary A. Clatty, First district of Greentree, to succeed Jennie Lampe, moved.

Mrs. Anna Minert, Second district of McCandless township, to succeed Frank Minert, deceased.

Mrs. Marian Shoup, Third district of Dormont, to succeed John P. McHale, moved.

GRANDDAUGHTERS GET ESTATE OF W. A. FINCH

Walter A. Finch, of Carrick, by his will filed yesterday, leaves an estate valued at $13,000. To a granddaughter, Edith M. Finch, he gives $1,500 and divides the remainder of the estate among Edith V. Finch, Anna M. Evans and Edith M. Finch, other grandchildren. The latter two are made executors.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Talk of Debuts for Early Fall Season Fills Air

THE time has come, the weather says, we might paraphrase, to speak of many things—of debut teas, and wedding bells, and benefits, and balls. Some folks aren't always mindful of the weather, though, so there are not so many people in town yet to talk about such autumn events as one might wish.

Anyway, there is talk everywhere of debuts, even if plans for "coming out" affairs aren't all settled. This year the season will open earlier than usual, you know, at least a week or two earlier than last year. Most of the debut teas as usual will come late in October and early in November.

I've just heard of a new October debutante affair. Mrs. John Follansbee, of Squirrel Hill avenue, will give a tea on Wednesday afternoon, October 31, in the Twentieth Century Club. And the guests of honor will be her debutante daughter, Rebecca, and her young daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Haynes Follansbee. Mrs. Follansbee, I'm sure you knew before last February as Elizabeth Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Laura Fawell Lewis, of Amberson avenue. Rebecca was in her sister-in-law's bridal party, if I remember correctly.

AND of course those interested in knowing who the buds of this fall will be know that Elizabeth Guiler, daughter of the Leonard Kent Guilers, of Squirrel Hill avenue, was mentioned early in the summer as a prospective debutante. She is going to come out this fall, though the date has not been definitely set yet, I've heard.

Elizabeth, by the way, gave a tea yesterday afternoon in her home in honor of Helen Slack, of Saginaw, Mich., her house guest. Elizabeth and Helen went to Dobbs Ferry together, and while Helen was here her hostess decided to have a reunion of former classmates who live in Pittsburgh.

AND still on the subject of debutantes, I understand that Louise Evans, who is coming out at a tea dance which her father and mother, the Henry Oliver Evanses, of South Negley avenue, will give on September 22, is going to leave for the East tonight to be a guest at the debut party of Mary Whitman, who lives at Mt. Kisko, N. Y. Priscilla Palmer, daughter of the George Palmers, of New York, who has been visiting Louise here, is going with her to attend the party.

PAULINE PAGE is being feted quite a lot, it seems. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. A. Cameron Mann, of South Negley avenue, the former Winifred Diller, gave a bridge party and luncheon in her home for Pauline—and that is one of a number of such affairs. Pauline, you know, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stevens Page, of Thomas boulevard, and she will marry Lesslie Stockton Howell on September 15.

DOROTHEA JENKINS, daughter of the T. Clifton Jenkins, will make her bow this year, too, you've heard, haven't you? I imagine her "coming out" tea will be rather late in the season, for the members of the Jenkins family are not expected back from their summer home at Spring Lake, N. J., until October, I've been told.

YOU recall, don't you, that a few days ago we mentioned that Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., was back from Europe? After a brief stay in New York, she went north instead of coming home. She's now in Gloucester, Mass. I daresay one attraction there is the wedding of Mary Armstrong Robinson and Henry Leslie Buswell, of Stillington Hall, Gloucester, to take place September 11.

* * *

THE William B. Schillers, who have been at New York, have returned to Sewickley. They expect to stay in the summer home there until late in the fall, I believe.

ONLY the immediate families were present at the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Anna Malcolm, daughter of Mrs. Malcolm and the late J. Nevin Malcolm, of Maple avenue, North Side, and Robert F. Clemens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Clemens, of Mt. Lebanon, which was solemnized Monday morning at 11:30 o'clock in the Arch Street Methodist Episcopal Church by the Rev. Dr. L. D. Spaugy, of McKeesport. The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, Craig E. Pearce, was attended by Miss Genevieve Jones. Joseph G. Clemens was his brother's best man. Miss Dorothy Floyd played the wedding music and Reed Miller sang. A breakfast followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Pearce, in Elsdon street, North Side. Mr. and Mrs. Clemens are taking a short trip and after October 1 will be at home in Maple avenue.

MRS. CHARLES PROVAN, of Regent Square, gave a luncheon in her home yesterday in honor of her house guest, Miss Elsie Schott, of Miami, Fla. There were eight guests.

MR. AND MRS. H. H. WAGONER, of Macon avenue, Regent Square, announce the marriage of their niece, Miss Etna Lee Fisher, and Andrew T. Sidehammer, of Regent Square, which was solemnized August 29 by the Rev. D. Parke Chapman in the Wilkinsburg Christian Church. A breakfast at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Sidehammer are taking a motor trip to the Great Lakes and Canada.

* * *

MRS. C. W. SCOTT and her sons, Charles and Wayne Scott, of Springfield, Mass., have returned home after visiting Mrs. Scott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Powell, of Jackson street.

WELFARE HEAD ADDRESSES PRINTERS

A. K. Oliver, president of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh in an address yesterday before the Printer's Club in Gimbel's restaurant, described the plan of campaign which is to be conducted throughout the county for financing of those social agencies federated in the Welfare Fund.

The campaign will open November 12 and continue 10 days.

It was pointed out that the Welfare Fund has been organized to present in a straightforward manner the maintenance requirements of its member agencies so that contributors can respond with full knowledge of the service proposed and have adequate assurance of a proper accounting.

Through joint campaigning it was declared, that economy is effected in time and overhead expense, and directing boards and specially trained workers will have time to give to improvement of service which hitherto had been devoted to securing needed funds.

No better medium for the development of broader community spirit in Pittsburgh has been proposed than united support of a community wide campaign for charitable enterprises, the speaker said. There are no divisions of creed or color where human need is concerned, and co-operative effort will assure success, he declared.

Additional Club News

has arranged its programs so as to emphasize the position of women as a basis for better understanding of international questions. The evening meetings will be devoted to this theme, while the morning and afternoon sessions will be given over to interpreting the activities of the Federation, together with suggestions and plans for its further development. Several new convention features will be introduced. The chairmen of departments have arranged for conferences on Monday afternoon, October 8, and another innovation will be the district luncheons which will supplant the hitherto hurried and unsatisfactory meetings after the morning sessions.

Among the convention speakers will be Herbert Johnson, cartoonist of the Saturday Evening Post, whose topic will be "The Circulating Picture Club;" Halide Edib (Hanum), the celebrated Turkish woman who came to the United States to speak at the Institute of Politics at Williams College; Mrs. Gertrude Bonnin, an American Indian and wife of Capt. Bonnin, of the Indian Bureau; Mrs. John F. Sippel, president of the General Federation; Mme. Marie Jonnesco, of Rumania; William A. Schnader and Owen Roberts, Philadelphia attorneys, and Mrs. E. S. H. McCauley, state Secretary of Public Welfare.

THE Oakland Woman's Club will begin its season October 5 and will have its president's day on October 19. On November 2 a visit will be made to the international art exhibit and thereafter, until the June outing, meetings will be held semi-monthly, on the first and third Fridays.

THE Avalon Woman's Club will begin its new season Monday in the home of Mrs. Carl Behrhorst, Home avenue. The program will be given by Mrs. F. F. Rohrer, Pittsburgh composer and pianist; Mrs. Emma Albert Dean, soprano, and Mrs. Walter Close, reader. Harry C. McKown, of the University of Pittsburgh, is the October speaker. In November the club will visit the international art exhibit and in December will be addressed by the Rev. C. M. Miller.

THE Yogoda Sat-Sanga Center will have a basket picnic at Martin's Cabin, Schenley Park. A social meeting and musical program have been arranged for Sunday evening at 3414 Fifth avenue, Oakland.

★If you value health—you will value this warning

TODAY everyone knows that decayed teeth and infected gums constitute a grave danger to our health. In order therefore that everyone might know how to safeguard against this threat, E. R. Squibb & Sons caused the entire dental profession to be asked definite questions on mouth hygiene. The answers received agreed almost unanimously that:

(1) Acids are the most frequent cause of tooth decay and infected gums.

(2) The most serious trouble occurs at the place where teeth and gums meet—known as The Danger Line.

(3) The best product known to neutralize acids in the mouth is Milk of Magnesia.

These answers constitute a warning to us all and also point out the safe and sure way to protect your teeth and gums—use Squibb's Dental Cream.

It contains more than 50% Squibb's Milk of Magnesia in the most convenient and effective form to neutralize acids at The Danger Line. When you brush your teeth with it, tiny particles of Milk of Magnesia are forced into every pit and crevice where acids can form. There they remain to safeguard your teeth and gums for hours afterwards.

Start now to protect your teeth and gums correctly—especially at The Danger Line. See your dentist regularly—and use Squibb's Dental Cream. It keeps the teeth beautifully white. 40c a large tube.

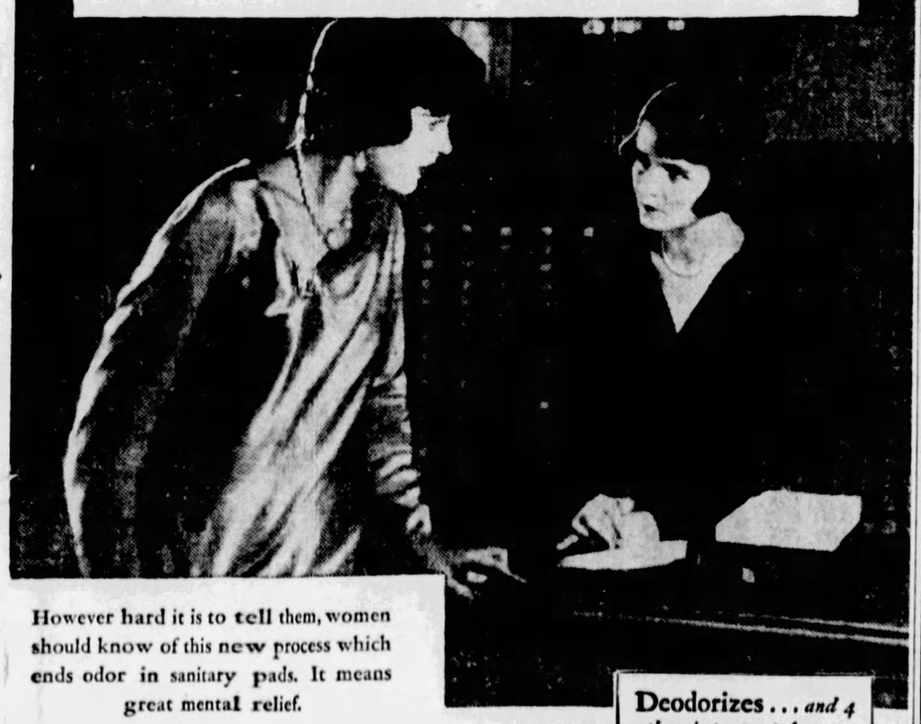
"Awkward to discuss—but I must tell my sales girls"

—Says the buyer in a Fifth Avenue Shop



However hard it is to tell them, women should know of this new process which ends odor in sanitary pads. It means great mental relief.

ACROSS the counter, in offices, in drawing rooms, in country clubs—wherever women meet the world, they are in danger of offending others at times. The unhappy self-consciousness which used to follow this realization is now ended. Kotex scientists have found (and patented*) a way to neutralize all odor in sanitary pads. This cause for worry is entirely dismissed. Women can meet any social emergency with a new light-heartedness.

Fear of consciousness gone, too

A certain bulkiness associated with old-fashioned methods has been overcome, too. Each pad is rounded and tapered in such a way as to leave no evidence of sanitary protection.

You may add or remove layers of filler as needed—a thing all women appreciate. There is a new softness, because both filler and gauze have been specially treated. Finally, Kotex is so easy to dispose of, eliminating all need of laundering.

Buy a box today, at any drug, dry goods or department store . . . 45c for a box of twelve. Supplied, also, in rest-room vending cabinets.

*Kotex is the only sanitary pad that deodorizes by patented process. (Patent No. 1,670,587, granted May 22, 1928.)

Deodorizes . . . and 4 other important features:

1—Softer gauze ends chafing; pliable filler absorbs as no other substance can;

2—Corners are rounded and tapered; no evidence of sanitary protection under any gown;

3—Deodorizes—safely, thoroughly, by a new and exclusive patented process;

4—Adjust it to your needs; filler may be made thinner, thicker, narrower as required;

and

5—It is easily disposed of; no unpleasant laundry.

Calendar of Amusements, Current and Coming, Promulgated Along With Interesting Facts About Old House

Drury Lane, London Theater, Gets a Gay New Coat of Paint From Profits of "Show Boat"

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

OLD Drury Lane in London has a new coat of paint—raw beef and ripe lemon color—but old Drury Lane has had another rejuvenation besides this external one. As you pass the stage door toward Catherine street, at 5 o'clock any afternoon, you see a long line of people, several hundreds already, some standing and many sitting on rented stools, waiting for the doors to open.

They are waiting three hours to see "Show Boat" from the low-priced amphitheater seats. On the opposite side of the theater, at the entrance to the pit, there is a similar queue of patient playgoers.

London has approved the verdict of Pittsburgh, which pronounced the musical play built on Edna Ferber's novel to be a masterpiece of its kind. They are humming "Ole Man Ribber" in the maze of meandering streets around the ancient playhouse where Edmund Kean used to act, with Charles Lamb and William Hazlitt in the audience.

It is the second time, at least, that an American dramatist has revived the fortunes of the old theater. The other time was when John Howard Payne, who wrote "Home, Sweet Home," supplied Kean with the tragedy of "Brutus," which Kean abominated, but the London public adored.

Now some other American dramatist ought to furnish a success for Covent Garden, the rival house around the corner. Covent Garden is dark and dismal. It is dark and dismal even when the season is at its height, for it is next to the unsightly and malodorous vegetable market. Where Mrs. Siddons, the Tragic Muse, used to walk abroad, decaying cabbages foul the pavement. Where Kemble used to play Hamlet, he could now really find "something rotten in the state of Denmark."

This region, north by east of Westminster Abbey, was in those days the heart and brain of London. Great men from abroad gravitated to this point—Voltaire and Franklin and Peter the Great lodged near here. But natives of mark and renown also haunted this quarter, where De Quincey wrote his "Opium Eater" and the Beefsteak Club held its savory sessions.

If David Garrick came back, he would find the London theaters multiplied by a score, but he'd not find another Garrick, nor even an Irving, nor even a Beerbohm Tree. Sir Barry Jackson is probably the most eminent English actor today in actual achievement and popular favor. He it was who thought of reviving Shakespeare by playing Hamlet in modern dress and Macbeth in khaki.

People thought that was a startling novelty. But it was exactly what David Garrick did in Samuel Johnson's day. He played Macbeth in a powdered periwig, looking like a respectable member of the House of Lords.

There is nothing new under the sun.

NEW OPERETTA IN BILLS

Seats are on sale in the Alvin box office for the engagement, beginning next Monday night, of a new operetta, "The New Moon," which Pittsburgh will see prior to its Broadway opening. Prominent in the cast are Evelyn Herbert, Robert Halliday and Gus Shy. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

Gus Forbes night, in the Pitt tonight, will be observed with members of the Pittsburgh Press Club present to cheer Mr. Forbes, who hold a card in the club. "Nightie Night" is the attraction this, the last week of the George Sharp Players.

The seat sale opened today in the box office of the Nixon for the second and last week of the wild animal picture, "Simba," filmed by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, famous African "camera hunters." The final week opens Monday matinee, September 10.

The frigid face of Buster Keaton will decorate the Penn screen next week as the film feature, in "The Cameraman," which pokes fun at the traditional daring and "go-getter" qualities of the news-reel cameraman. "Wonderful Girl" is the stage show title.

In the Stanley next week the screen feature will be Conrad Nagel and Myran Loy in "State Street Sadie," a photoplay with sound. Harry Fox and Company in "The Bee and the Fox," will be the stage offering.

Clive Brook and Mary Bryan will have leading roles in "Forgotten Faces," booked for Grand and Liberty screens next week.

"The Lion and the Mouse" comes to the Regent screen Saturday for a week. It features Lionel Barrymore and May McAvoy.

"Midgetland," a group of tiny singers, dancers and comedians, will head the vaudeville in the Harris the last three days of this week. Olive Borden, in "The Albany Night Boat," will be on the screen.

"Dainty Dolls" will be the burlesque attraction in the Academy next week, opening with a midnight show Sunday.

In the Sheridan Square the last three days of this week will be "The Aristocrats," radio and record artists. The screen feature will be Olive Borden in "The Albany Night Boat."

Plan Hoover Television Broadcast

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—A plan has been undertaken by the motion picture section of the Republican National Committee for the national broadcasting by television of a motion picture of Herbert Hoover when he makes his address at Newark, N. J., on September 17.

Under the plan small receiving screens would be installed in several cities, probably San Francisco, Chicago and Washington and the nominee's friends near his California home the breadth of a continent away, as well as his wife in the living room of their Washington home would be able to see him on the platform and listen to his voice.

FUTURE ATTRACTIONS -:- FILM AND FOOTLIGHT -:- FEATURE THESE STARS

Evelyn Herbert of "The New Moon," in Alvin next week. | Conrad Nagel of "State Street Sadie," next week in the Stanley. | Margaret Mann of "Four Sons," Aldine film of later date. | May McAvoy, "The Lion and the Mouse," in the Regent next week. | Mary Bryan, "Forgotten Faces," next week, Grand and Liberty. | Buster Keaton, "The Cameraman," Penn picture next week. | Osa Johnson, "Simba," next week second and last, Nixon.

TECH TO GIVE FULL COURSE IN AVIATION ENGINEERING

The first regular four-year course in aviation engineering to be taught in Pittsburgh will be started at Carnegie Institute of Technology with the opening of the fall term September 21.

Petitions from undergraduates and requests from prospective students resulted in the new course being planned last June. It has proven to be one of the most popular courses on the campus, according to institute officials.

The degree earned by completion of the course does not signify the graduate is a finished aeronautical engineer. Special training must be obtained either by a post graduate course or through practical training on flying fields or in airplane factories.

It is considered that when the municipal airport is opened, a connection for students to obtain ground work or flight experience will be made.

AIR CIRCUS TO REOPEN YOUNGSTOWN'S FIELD

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 6.—To celebrate the restoration of air mail service, an air circus and carnival will be conducted tomorrow at Lansdowne Field, with several planes from the Cleveland airport participating.

OUR DANCING DAUGHTERS

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Based Upon the Photoplay Version by Josephine Lovett

Intense, gripping, and dramatic, the action of this story flashes through the merciless intrigues of two girls for the heart of a man! Reckless—triflers with love—pleasure-loving—the characters in this remarkable story try to dance through life without paying the piper.

TWO BENEFITS BOOST MILK AND ICE FUND

TWO benefits for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund which were held before school reopoined have just been heard from and the fund is richer thereby. A band of little folk out in Glassport gave thought to the poor children of the big city and by means of a refreshment stand and a sale of candy and lemonade raised $4, which is hereby acknowledged. The workers were Jane Grubbs, Rita Stinner, Nell Phillips, Lois Sonerson, Jane Larkin, Betty Griffin, Margaret Kurtzrock, Nell Hickey and Mary Boyle.

Shirley Wilhelm, Louise Owens and Marion Harding, of Montier street, Wilkinsburg, have done their share for and shown their interest in the fund and its babies by adding $8.50, the proceeds of their benefit. Today's two gifts bring the total to $2,149.67.

Skin eruptions successfully treated from within

SKILLED physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system.

This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

You owe it to yourself and friends to give S.S.S. a trial. It helps Nature build rich, red blood—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

In building rich, red blood cells, S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy."—Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

—purely vegetable

When your system is filled with rich, red blood, you don't have that tired, languid feeling when you awake in the morning. Instead, you feel, refreshed, ready to meet the world.

Your appetite is keen—you enjoy work or play—your skin is clear, cheeks naturally rosy.

All this because rich, red blood builds and sustains the body.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

Cool Days Heralded By Extraordinary Event

54-Inch DRESS WOOLENS

1.79 Yd.

Regularly 2.95 and 3.95 yard

You'll see a myriad of chic cool-weather-frocks in your mind's eye when you get your first glimpse of these dress woolens. A closer scrutiny will reveal what excellent values are here represented. There are 2,000 yards of woolens whose quality is undoubtedly worth double that price and more . . . Our advantageous purchasing means actual savings.

What type of woolen do you wish?—Wool-and-Rayon mixtures? Hairline Stripes? Tweeds? All-Wool Epingles? French Serges? Flannels? Wool Crepes? Poplins? Repps? Kashas? Twills? Poiret Sheens? They are all represented . . . in greater variety than you would think possible, all shown for the first time to-morrow.

School of Dressmaking Now Open

Here is your opportunity to fashion your own frocks under the supervision of an expert dressmaker. Lessons arranged in the department at your own convenience. 6 for $5.

KAUFMANN'S . . . SIXTH FLOOR

These Timely Frocks Display Fabrics, Colors, Styles, Remarkable at Only

Fabrics—Colors—Styles! By virtue of all three these frocks belong in the newest mode.

FABRICS! Wool crepes for street wear with the chic of the more expensive tailleur. Satins, lustrous and heavy. Crepes, usually combined effectively with velvet . . . And velvets! Soft chiffon velvets in black only.

COLORS! Every smart shade shows its colors here. The lighter-than-navy as well as the navy blues; rich, vibrant wine tones; harvest browns essentially of the Fall; balsam green so popular here; and black, sponsored by Paris.

STYLES surprisingly fashion-right. The new High-Tie frock, California-inspired, is featured for the petite miss of 14 to 20. (Sketched at right). The asymmetrical lines that slenderize. The ruffled silhouette that is shown on frocks three times this price. Frocks for every feminine shopper at a price within the purse limitations of all.

The Prince of Wales — His Story.

Accorded Reception in All Parts of Country During Tour of Australia

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, was born at White Lodge, Richmond, in midsummer of 1894. Guilty of much mischief during his childhood days, he was often punished. When he grew older he was sent to Osborne Naval College and later to Oxford for his university education. During the World War he became a captain in the army and went to France, but was not permitted to get into the actual fighting. After the war he made his first tour of Canada and then paid a visit to the United States. He has always been known to bear the dignity of his position in a manner termed as irreproachable.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Edward P."

By WALTER AND LEONARD TOWNSEND

CHAPTER XV.

AFTER the Prince's tour in Canada he looked forward with eagerness to his trip to the Antipodes. One chilly March morning the royal party went up the gangway of the Renown, which lay in Portsmouth Harbor.

PRINCE OF WALES

The Prince insisted that there should be no undue ceremonial in connection with his presence on board. He took part with the officers in the usual deck games; inspected with the captain the parades of the men, and dined either with the captain and his own staff or invited various officers to his own suite.

During the mornings he would read in the quiet of his own cabin. The Prince believes in being fully prepared before he embarks on any of his empire tours. He always insists on doing his own share of work towards making the tour a success.

There was a tragic incident which subdued the Prince and the whole ship's company just before the "Renown" reached Barbadoes. A gunner fell overboard during a rough sea and despite the utmost attempts to save him, he was drowned. The Prince attended the funeral service which was held in the forecastle and sent a radio message of condolence to the lost sailor's relatives.

The first break in the Australian tour was made at Bridgetown, the capital of Barbadoes. As soon as the "Renown" dropped anchor off the island she was surrounded by boats of all kinds, and as their occupants cheered the Prince stood at the top of the gangway saluting and smiling.

The Prince's leisure had come to a temporary end. There were speeches to make, ex-servicemen to chat with and shake hands, sugar factories to visit and look over. Throughout the whole city, crowds lined the route. This was perhaps the first meeting between the Prince and some of the black subjects of his father in their own land.

Yanks on Guard

Negroes and Negresses stood in black serried mass nearly all their heads swathed in Union Jacks! As H. R. H. passed slowly through little villages of wooden huts, he frequently alighted to pass a pleasant word with the inhabitants and to inspect the school children or Boy Scouts. At the state dinner held in the evening, the Prince was received with a storm of applause. He contradicted the rumor that part of the West Indies were to be sold to America.

"The King's subjects are not for sale," the Prince said, quietly.

From the Barbadoes in the Caribbean Sea, the Renown, escorted by the Calcutta, entered the Panama Canal where three American service airplanes hovered overhead to welcome the heir to the English throne. On the first lock a squad of American soldiers were drawn up as a guard, and as the Renown came abreast of these they presented arms and a band struck up the British National Anthem. A slim, upright figure in the uniform of a naval captain stood on the quarter-deck at the salute—the Prince! Presently he went ashore, inspected the guard of honor—shook hands with the officer in charge and invited him to lunch on the Renown.

With his usual interest in constructive enterprise the Prince inspected the control house of the famous canal, in which the great locks and gates are maneuvered.

Dredges are continually at work keeping the bottom clean, for there are continual landslides from the treacherous banks which at times almost slit up the navigation passages. Such a slip occurred while the massive Renown was passing through. The captain managed to manipulate the difficult passage. The Renown now began to drop lock by lock to the level of the Pacific and at Panama further progress was suspended again while H. R. H. received on board several officials and dignitaries. He also paid a formal visit to the President of Panama.

Visits San Diego

During the stay of the Prince in Panama the city proclaimed a holiday in honor of the occasion and H. R. H. attended a ball that was given in his honor. During the evening it was noticed that the Prince chose as his partner a very pretty girl whose dancing greatly pleased him. After a time the unrest amongst the more important feminine guests communicated itself to the Prince's staff

Hoover to Quit East Oct. 17

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover's New York address on October 17 will be the fourth and last he will make in the East and South. Soon afterward he will begin his final campaign drive with a swing across the continent that will take him to his California home in time to vote on November 6.

His invasion of the Democratic South will be made early in October with a speech at Elizabethton, Tenn., on the sixth of that month at an industrial celebration. Either immediately before or after this trip he will go to Boston to speak in the state where the Republicans are centering a great deal of effort.

While the Republican presidential nominee has decided upon the theme of only his Newark, N. J., talk on September 17, it is now expected that in none of the four will he discuss prohibition, a subject which some had anticipated he would elaborate upon in the southland.

Hoover is represented as feeling that his own position in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment and enforcement of the dry laws is well known; that the issue was definitely drawn with announcement of his Democratic opponent for amendment of the prohibition section of the constitution, and that the people would prefer an elucidation of his views on other issues of the campaign.

N. D. Party Split on Hoover

BISMARCK, N. D., Sept. 6.—North Dakota Republicans today had split over the question of supporting Herbert Hoover for President.

The Non-Partisan League faction of the party was on record as refusing to indorse Hoover's candidacy, while the Independent Republicans are backing him.

The action came yesterday at a meeting, called to organize the Republican State Central Committee. The Independents offered a resolution indorsing Mr. Hoover and his stand on agriculture. This was defeated, 19 to 9.

As a result, the Independents or "Regular Republicans" organized separately and decided to carry on a vigorous campaign for the national ticket.

The Nonpartisans in their resolutions criticized Mr. Hoover as a "tool to big business" and asserted that the Republican party has strayed from its original course. The resolutions made it clear that the action was intended to show a lack of faith in the Republican party and its candidates rather than an endorsement of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

The "Regulars" were defeated by the committee members from districts which had been hostile to the Coolidge administration and the nomination of Mr. Hoover.

The Independents' committee also disregarded the stand taken by United States Senators Lynn J. Frazier and Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, who have issued statements announcing support for Mr. Hoover. Both Mr. Nye and Mr. Frazier were elected with Nonpartisan indorsements.

FAINTS AS SENTENCE STARTS

WARREN, Pa., Sept. 6.—As Judge D. U. Arird began pronouncing sentence of M. L. Welsh, of Chandlers Valley, self-confessed bootlegger, the latter collapsed and fainted.

He was carried from the courtroom and did not hear all of the sentence of $200 fine, costs and confinement in the Allegheny County Workhouse for six months. He was brought into court today to hear the latter part of the sentence.

N. Y. STAGE HANDS MAY WALK OUT SATURDAY

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The menace of a theatrical strike hung over Broadway today for the first time since the Actor Equity strike in 1919.

Two thousand stage hands from every legitimate house in the city may walk out Saturday if their demand for better wages and hours is not met by the International Theatrical Association, an organization of theatrical producers.

Department heads here, of whom there are three in each theater—property man, carpenter and electrician—ask $100 weekly. Now they get between $75 and $100.

Assistants, who have been receiving $65, want $90. Ordinary stagehands want $8 a performance rather than their present $6. The union wants a change also in hours so that a crew of seven men will be alternating weekly with musical and dramatic shows.

With the autumn season swinging into high gear, the present forms the strategic time for an attempt at wage hoisting. Producers have spent hundreds of thousands preparing attractions. Without manpower behind the curtain, they are "sunk" and so is their investment.

The labor committee of the managers and a committee from Local No. 1, Theatrical Protective Union, were to confer today in an effort to put through a contract replacing the one that expired September 1.

"We won't be able to hold the boys after Saturday," an officer of the Protective Union declared, "if negotiations fail."

Killed

MARY WEBER

Mary Weber, 5, Grant avenue, Millvale, has died in St. Francis Hospital of injuries received late yesterday afternoon when she was struck near her home by a taxicab driven by J. Winbauer, 1926 Lowrie street.

SWINDLE GANG FINED AND PAROLED

Three of five men convicted in a huge merchandise swindle, were fined and paroled yesterday by Judge R. N. Gibson, and a fourth was paroled today.

Meyer Luber and Jacob Fierman, Philadelphia wholesale dry goods dealers, were sentenced to pay $4,000 each within three months and paroled for two years. Max Sheinman, Philadelphia, fined $2,000, also was paroled for two years.

Benjamin Sheinman, Pittsburgh, and Abe Sheinman, Philadelphia, convicted with the three on November 4, 1927, for concealing assets from a receiver in bankruptcy and conspiracy, will be sentenced December 8.

Benjamin Sheinman, with Joseph Rabinovitz, operated a clothing store at 1200 Fifth avenue under the name of Benjamin Sheinman & Co., it was testified at the trial. They made heavy purchases from New York clothing stores. Much of the merchandise, it was brought out, was reshipped to Luber & Fierman in Philadelphia, and sold at less than cost. Later the company went into bankruptcy.

Rabinovitz, one of the defendants, pleaded guilty and became a government witness. He was paroled today for two years.

The trial of the five men lasted more than a week. The case was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans.

FOUR IN FRONT SEAT, DRIVER IS FINED $25

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 6.—John J. Castor, of Slippery Rock was fined $25, with costs, by Alderman George R. Kearns for permitting four persons to ride in the front seat of his automobile. It is the first case of the kind heard in Butler county.

Smith to Deny Sway Of Church

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Gov. Al Smith is not worried about the "whispering" campaign which Democratic leaders charge is being waged against him in various parts of the country, but at the proper time he will handle it without mincing words, his close friends predicted today.

Steps already have been taken by the Democratic National Committee to nail the charge that Smith would be influenced by the Catholic church in the event of his election as President. A statement will be issued shortly by the national committee giving the religious affiliation of every person appointed to a major position by Smith during the eight years he has served as governor of New York.

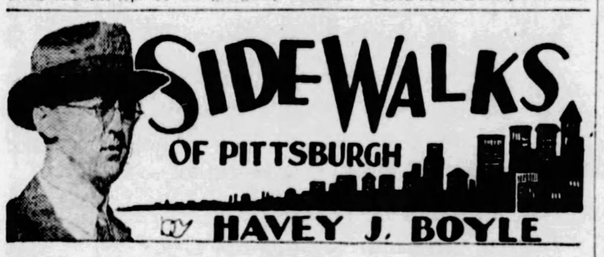
The time is near at hand, Smith's advisers believed, when he will drag the "whisperers" out into the open and deal with them in no uncertain terms.

Governor Smith starts his invasion of the normally Republican west on September 18. This became assured today when three speaking engagements were announced for the Democratic nominee as follows: Omaha, Neb., September 18; Oklahoma City, Okla., September 20; Denver, Col., September 22.

NOT GIVEN FINE OPTION, PRISONER ASKS RELEASE

Claiming that Burgess W. S. Haddock, of Dormont, did not give Murray Roman, magazine salesman from New York, the option of paying a fine when sentenced to jail for 30 days on a suspicious person charge, Attorney George Little has begun habeas corpus proceedings to gain the man's freedom.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

BOYD HAMILTON, former secretary to Gov. John Fisher, and at present secretary of the State Senate, visited Pittsburgh recently. He had a chat with Bill Lewis, of the Sun-Telegraph, and this caused Mr. Lewis, a former colleague of Boyd's in Harrisburg, to recall that in his opinion Hamilton was the hardest working newspaperman he ever knew.

Gentlemen of the press, and other hard workers, besides the great number of Pittsburghers who know Boyd Hamilton, may be interested in learning how Boyd worked when he served the Harrisburg Telegraph. Here is what he did, according to Mr. Lewis, who worked with him:

Served as political editor, in which he handled national, state and local political affairs. Ran a column called the Capitol Hill column, in which he discussed the affairs of officials of the state and their various departments. Ran an Evening Chat column, devoted to personals of the important personages who lived and visited in Harrisburg. Wrote a Saturday real estate department and a special illustrated article every Sunday.

In his spare time, after he had done all this, he served as Harrisburg correspondent for The Associated Press, and for Philadelphia and Pittsburgh newspapers. How did he do all this. It was very simple. He reported for work about 9 o'clock in the morning and worked steadily until about 3 o'clock the next morning.

There wasn't much time for cricket or croquet in Mr. Hamilton's routine, but Mr. Lewis reports his work was his pastime. Owing to his many contacts in his hundred-fold newspaper activities Mr. Hamilton is rated the best known newspaperman in the state.

A paragraph a few days ago about a man who plays with toys brings an office-caller who reports that the hobby of mechanical toys among grown-ups is more popular than generally suspected. Stores selling model railroads, model engines, roundhouses, etc., report a brisk trade among men.

Some of the sets cost as high as $300. Made-to-order sets sometimes run as high as $1,000.

After hearing this we won't be so ashamed the next time our little drum wears out and we have to buy another one. There's no greater fun than romping around the house, wearing Indian feathers in one's hair, and at the same time beating a raucous drum.

NUMBER ONE of a Series of Men Who Don't Break into the News: He listens to men and women who talk a good game of bridge and who read all the current authorities. He never read a rule in bridge and doesn't know Work or Whitehead, but put his feet under a bridge table and he instinctively calculates the mathematical chances of any given bid and can analyze the hands of opponents, after seeing the dummy, as well as noted authorities can. He would not be disgraced in any bridge foursome in town.

He hears golfers supplicating heaven to be allowed the talent to break 100 consistently. He gave up golf a few years ago because he could not give enough time to the game to improve himself. At the time he gave up golf he was breaking 80 with regularity and once in a while he shot a par. He is the only man in Pittsburgh, and probably the only man in the country who divorced himself from golf, although owning ability to break 80. His name is William Keally. Finally, he is one expert bridge player who never plays his partner's hand, never takes a bid through lack of confidence in his partner, and never gives advice unless asked.

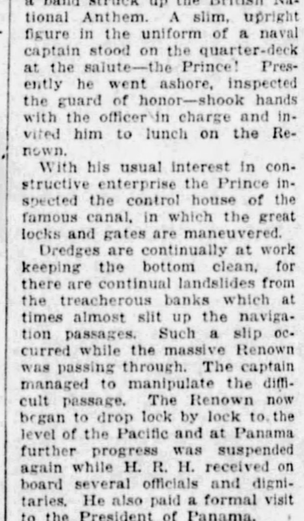
For vice president, William Keally, friend of oppressed bridge players, and check rein on the boys who talk a great game of golf.

Appointed



JOSEPH I. WINSLOW

Attorney Joseph I. Winslow, 718 Grandview avenue, has been appointed assistant solicitor, Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes. He has been chief clerk of the Department of City Planning, employed in the U. S. Engineering Department, and served as secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners.

WALKOUT FIZZLES, 60 PUPILS BACK IN SCHOOL

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 6.—Sixty pupils of the Lamont School, who yesterday rebelled and declared a strike because they said the new principal, Glenn Wilson, was "too mean," were back in school today and the threatened walkout of the other 450 pupils was averted.

After the strike had been declared, Supervising Principal J. D. Shaner and Principal Glenn Wilson, visited homes of the striking pupils and explained the matter to the parents. The latter agreed that their children would be back in school today and the Lemont School took up with almost its entire list of students this morning.

Striking pupils cited the whipping of five pupils since school opened to back up their contention that the principal was dealing harshly with them. Prof. Wilson asserted that he was simply maintaining discipline.

CAPT. MILLER'S JOB SAFE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 6.—Capt. David B. Miller, Greensburg, of the highway patrol, who was sentenced by the Butler County Court yesterday to pay a fine of $200 and be imprisoned for four months, will continue as an officer of the patrol, Capt. William G. Price, superintendent, said today.

"He has no discipline coming," Price declared. "I made an investigation of the case and found it was prejudice on the part of the court. We plan to appeal the case to higher courts."

Miller was convicted of malfeasance in office in ordering a highway patrolman to change charges against a driver from "driving while intoxicated" to "driving recklessly."

Free Bus Service Hurts Monessen Merchants

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 6.—Charging that home trade is being disrupted, the Perryopolis Board of Trade is contemplating action to prevent operation of free bus service from that town to Monessen by merchants of the latter place on Saturdays.

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 6.

Well, it looks like everybody has accepted that is going to accept.

So now they can settle down to see what chance they have of receiving what they have already accepted.

Being associated with national calamities more or less for years, you would think that Hoover belonged on the Democratic ticket, wouldn't you?

Yours, WILL.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

A NEW program, entitled "Melodies and Memories," will make its first appearance over the air, via WJAS and other stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System, at 10 o'clock tonight. "Melodies and Memories" will appeal to lovers of the best music, as it is highly classical in nature, designed especially to awaken memories of melodies of such masters as Bach, Handel, Gluck, etc. The program is to be played by a large string orchestra.

"Boccaccio," an operetta by Franz von Suppe, will be presented by the United Light Opera Company through WJAS at 9 o'clock. This operetta was originally produced in 1879 and is one of the most beautiful examples of Von Suppe's work. The plot of "Boccaccio" concerns Pietro, the Prince of Palermo, who, in accordance with the wishes of his father, goes to Florence to marry Fiametta, daughter of the Duke of Tuscany.

An all-popular program of modern compositions will be offered by the Hoover Artists through the NBC System, including WCAE, at 8:30 o'clock. The Hoover Sentinels, a male quartet, will be heard in Abbott's "Is It Going to Be Long?" and the latest Berlin song hit, "Ten Little Miles from Town." A more tender note will be sounded by the Hoover Honeymooners with Victor Herbert's "When You're Away," which has been arranged as a vocal duet. As usual the entire period will be interspersed with lively dance tunes by an orchestra.

"By St. Lawrence Waters" is the tone picture to be presented by the River Choristers in their broadcast through WCAE at 8 o'clock. The "St. Lawrence Boat Song" will open the period as an appropriate introduction by the male octet. All the other selections are taken from the works of MacMillan and Gibbon, whose compositions reflect the atmosphere for this week's presentation. In addition to the vocal numbers there will be the usual special arrangements and accompaniments by trombone, harp and piano.

A South Sea Island orchestra, directed by Joseph Rodgers, will present a program of Hawaiian airs as the "Orchestras That Differ" feature, through KDKA at 9 o'clock. "Waikiki Blues," by King, will open the program of plaintive melodies, followed by the same composer's "Hana Hana Hanalei." Other numbers will be "Sailing Along to Hawaii" and "Drowsy Waters."

George Tootell's "Manx Suite" will be played during the Maxwell House concert over KDKA at 9:30 o'clock. Manx, when applied to cats, means that they are minus tails, but reference to the encyclopedia reveals the fact that Manx refers to the Isle of Man, a beautiful little island in the Irish Sea, midway between England and Ireland. And so the suite which is to be a feature of this program is a collection of sketches written in tribute to the beauty of the Isle of Man. It includes three numbers, "Crag and Sea," "The Trysting Place" and "A Manx Wedding." Nathaniel Shilkret, director of the orchestra, characterizes this music as descriptive of the loveliness of the island and of the quaint customs. The program also will include Resikov's "Dance of the Chinese Dolls," the prelude to "Le Deluge," by Saint-Saens, and the prelude to Humperdinck's fairy opera, "Hansel and Gretel."

FIREMEN HOLD OAKDALE FETE

Oakdale hasn't had so much excitement since the boom days of the oil excitement as it is having this week. The cause is the Firemen's carnival. A $7,000 fire truck was purchased recently and to pay for it paddle wheels are singing a merry tune.

10,000,000 Men Were Marked for Death!

Read the History of the Secret Causes of the Great World War

Five Tragic Weeks

By EMIL LUDWIG

most brilliant historical writer of the day, whose recent biographies of Bonaparte and Napoleon have created such interest and controversy throughout the civilized world.

The finger of an obscure man pressed a trigger at Sarajevo—and Europe moved headlong into the welter of the World War. Who was back of this assassin? What secret motives of diplomacy juggled the fate of Europe? Was there a secret group of plotters against peace? What were the real facts of those feverish days?

BUGS BAER Says

TEX GUINAN'S racket isn't doing so well in the California cafeterias.

The famous night hostess of the New York flea - bags intended to act in the talkies.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

They made a test.

And discovered that Tex's voice was too manly.

When Tex walked into the Los Angeles cafeteria a big husky bouncer said:

"Give this little girl a big platter."

The only thing sadder than a middle-aged oyster is a night club hostess beneath the California sun.

Tex hasn't seen daylight for so long that she has forgotten how to talk. She hoots like an owl.

She intends to come right back to Manhattan where the nights are closer together.

There was no brass band at the station to greet the prima donna of the Broadway drums.

Neither did the Mayor of Los Angeles give the keys of the city to insomnia's leading lady.

Tex intended to whack the Mayor over the head with a slapstick. But the Mayor didn't show up.

Maybe he doesn't appreciate talent.

Tex's next stop will be Arizona, which is California's parking state.

Hearing that Babe Ruth refused to pose with Hoover, Tex said:

"I'll pose with Herbie. I never fell off a lap in my life."

The best she got was a motor accident when her 16-passenger truck was sideswiped by a roving bunker.

Tex said:
"Am I hurt? Say, if the bruises were a little closer together, I would be a bottle of ink."

Possibly Tex doesn't understand that good old California hospitality without cover charges.

When they asked her about the climate, she said: "What good is it if you can't charge for it?"

Ex-Service Man Recommends M. G. Treatment for Deep-Seated Coughs

Hundreds of men and women testify that they have been greatly benefited by M. G. Treatment for run-down conditions due to racking, painful coughs. Physicians of high standing prescribe and recommend it as a strength building tonic for patients who are suffering with deep seated coughs. Here is one of many similar letters from a man who has taken this treatment:

Feb. 5, 1928.

M. G. Remedy Co., Denver, Colo.
Gentlemen: I am a tubercular ex-service man, having spent approximately six years in different Government Sanatoriums. Since my discharge from Government Hospital No. 50, Whipple Barracks, Arizona, I have been continually losing weight, have suffered loss of appetite and have been troubled with chronic constipation, and did not sleep well at night. After having taken only three bottles of your tonic, I have gained three pounds in weight, have a wonderful improvement in appetite, and sleep much better at night.

I can cheerfully recommend your tonic to anyone in my former condition and feel sure that any one who will give your tonic a trial will feel grateful to you for the good results he will experience. Hoping that your tonic may become more widely known, I am,

Yours truly,
Roy L. Edwards, Detective Division,
Police Department, Denver, Colo.

M. G. Remedy is sold and recommended as a system building and disease resisting tonic for the blood. It is guaranteed to satisfy and it costs only $3 per 16-oz. bottle; two bottles for $5.50; or a complete treatment of four 16-oz. bottles for $10 prepaid. Order direct or send for free book. M. G. Remedy Co., P. O. Box 421, Dept. A, Denver, Colo.

Fewer People Sent to Prison

DURING the first few years of this century, approximately 500 people out of every 100,000 of the population were sent to prison every year. Today the percentage is just over 100 in the 100,000.

THE VACATION LITANY "I'll Never Forget You!"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

SUMMER—"How Can We Part? I'll Never Forget!"

ONE of Kipling's most singingest ballads came back in each verse to the sad triumphant lover's chant, "LOVE LIKE OURS CAN NEVER DIE!"

Under the Joshua palm, beside the Hudson, under the moon, the prairie sun, under a tearful umbrella and the roar of the "L," in the movie and the lighthouse, beside the living-room piano, and the roofs of the world where the snow winds hum, everywhere that two people—one a man and the other a girl—can be, that litany is sung. And believed, with all the ardent faith that lovers show.

And sometimes they sing it always—with varying accents. For their dream comes true.

But the litany of litanies for fallibility, the most ardent, the loudest, the most positive, made to be broken, is the vacation litany—the one that goes like this, whispered to some one who was a perfect stranger a week before, now a familiar face, a dear companion—"HOW can we part? I'll NEVER forget you!" And believed!

The litany that by Winter changes its tune and is a puzzled query, "WHICH ONE WAS HE? I don't remember any JIM."

What more ardent, more fearful of parting, than that sudden attachment on the floating world of a ship, or the mountain-top world adrift in the priceless blue of the sky? What more painful than that parting from the close companion of a fortnight of jewelled days? And what quicker forgotten when the time for the waters of forgetfulness to go over the head of vacation-love?

The vacation litany—"HOW CAN I GO ON WITHOUT SEEING HIM? I'LL NEVER, NEVER FORGET!"

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Fluff Confesses Stealing And Io Gives Her Money To Repay the Firm

TIMMY would live with his grandparents; he would grow up to give Janey the love and loyalty most mothers would die rather than forfeit.

Home, husband, son—life—refused by Jenepher. All in the name of ambition. A selfish woman who would make over existence to suit her own ends.

Jenepher who would gain the whole world—ah, what would that profit her? For the very soul of her life would be lost!

Ione's week was not yet up. But the next morning—Friday—she kissed Janey, dropped a tear on Tom's white head, whispering something about a trimmed lamp, and went back to the city.

CHAPTER XLI.

IT was the commuters' train Ione took and she went directly to the office.

The girl at the exchange board called her. "Say, the cuddle-pup phoned you. Ol' Fluff. Told her you wouldn't be in and she asked your home number. She's in a stew about something and wants to see you."

Ione walked over to the grimy old house west of Eighth avenue, wondering.

She found the "studio" much as Alan had seen it, slattern and drear.

Fluff locked the door. Even at first glance Ione saw how tense she was. Her face seemed to have shrunk and drawn down into fine, wavering lines. Her eyes kept darting here and there as if in fear.

"You're going away, Fluff?" she began kindly. "You're having your vacation now?"

"I'm going, Mrs. Blake. But not for a vacation. I'm going for good. Running away."

"But—"

"You don't see why I sent for you? Well, you've been pretty decent to me. The way you talked after the Iris Club thing and all. Not many would do that. Women aren't so kind when their husbands have been stepping out. It's always the girl they blame, too.

"There was a woman—never mind that, though. I know I'm feather-headed, but you can't help the way you're made."

"But Fluff, I don't understand. Mr. Blake hasn't discharged you?"

"No. Not yet. It's him I wanted to talk about. You see—probably you know I've been in love with him.

"Anyway I s'pose I thought there was a chance for me with him if I could make him think me attractive. I tried hard enough. Spent all I earned on clothes, but you can't do much on 20 a week.

"Don't ever fool yourself about how he feels toward you. If you'd seen his face that day he found out I'd been talking to you!

"And he's kind. And sometimes he seemed so down, kind of; I used to wonder what it was life refused anybody as nice as him. I'd say silly things and he'd laugh and I started thinking maybe I could make him happier. I wasn't all selfish, you see.

"Anyway after everything was over and I saw just how I stood and realized what I'd done I got scared. I was just going to pack up and get out without a word to anybody. Then I got to remembering how decent you'd been and I kind of felt I ought to do what I could to square things. I waited all week for you to come back, but I couldn't stick around after today. Monday's the first of the month, you see, and they'll be going over the books."

"You've made mistakes in the books? I think you're foolish to run away for that, Fluff. They can be fixed up all right."

The girl wrung her hands together, weak little slope-away chin quivering like a rabbit's—finally brought up her eyes half defiantly.

"It's worse than mistakes, Mrs. Blake. You see I opened charge accounts when I bought the clothes. They got mean about the bills and I had to pay. On 20 a week—well, I took money from the safe. A lot of money—" She began to sob, digging at her eyes with a grimy ball of handkerchief.

"You did this thing, Fluff? But—why, they'll blame Alan! Oh, a terrible thing—" Now Ione was blazing at her something as Alan had done that other day, gripping her arm, shaking it.

"I thought you might do something. You could go to Weimar and tell him. I'll be gone then."

"That's wild! You think he'd believe me—that anyone would? You must do it yourself. You'll have to do it yourself!"

Fluff slumped in her chair, limp-souled little craven, whimpering. She should be made to tell Weimar, Ione thought.

She said suddenly, "How much is it, Fluff?"

The amount was a little more than $300. Three hundred dollars' worth of finery to capture Alan's fancy! Ione couldn't help a small, wry smile as she walked to the windows, looked down on the clothesline and ash cans.

Turning back she found Fluff's eyes on her in a dumb, appealing look. "If you had the money to put back in the safe could you make it look right on the books?" she asked.

"I s'pose I could. They're all kind of mixed up anyway. I don't know bookkeeping much."

"Well, then, if I get it for you will you promise—"

The girl interrupted with a fresh burst of sobs. "I'll promise anything, Mrs. Blake! I don't want to hurt him—you—"

"That's all right then. I'm going to do this. You'll fix the books and tell Mr. Blake you're resigning. You wait for me here then. I'll be back in a half hour."

Ione went to the bank—wrote a slip—passed it over the ledge with her worn book. Dream of an old gabled house, a rambling garden, a girl in a pink dress waiting at a picket gate! Gone—all gone—

"You wish to close the account, Mrs. Blake?"

"Yes, please."

"Sorry. Just sign here—"

Four hundred and twenty dollars. The end of a dream. The end—the end!

She went back to Fluff and walked to the office with her. At the door she gave her all but $20 of the money.

"You'll do everything as I've told you, Fluff? Well, won't see you again then."

"But here's $30 too much. Only $270 I took—"

"You'll need that, won't you? You said you hadn't anything? Take it and good luck wherever you go."

"Mrs. Blake—" Tears were running down the kitten face. "Would you kiss me? I can't thank you—oh, you're wonderful! This will help me, just remembering you—"

CHAPTER XLII.

IONE met him at the door—put her arms about him in the old, sweet way.

"Lanny," she whispered. "Lan, dearest!"

He drew her to him and held her close—a slim girl in a fly-away frock, little face warm against his throat, dark, Japanesey hair fragrant to his lips.

"You came back to me, Frills. Ah, the darling! Missed you so—"

She ran her hands down his face, saw the hazel flecks go all together in the gray eyes. Not quite certain, those eyes searching her own.

"Well, how about it? All pretty and quick, now—how about it, ol' friend husband?"

"Better'n best, Io. You remember that—"

"As if I could forget!" But it had been a year since they said that silly thing to each other.

She told him to hurry. "Eggs souffle tonight and they won't wait. And I made your favorite pop-overs."

Dinner was on the tea-wagon, smoking hot when he came in slicking back his damp hair till it looked quite dark, glancing about in a puzzled way.

"You're the cook, Frills? What's the big idea? Klarschen quit?"

"Nope. Gave her a week's pay and let her go. It's a caution how that girl ran up bills. Think you can put up with your wife's cooking, sweet Lanny? Tell me now, hows every little thing and every big one?"

Chattering, giggling, all blithely whimsical she was, sitting across from him in her swirl of flounces, blue eyes sparkling so.

Time was running backward tonight.

She was gathering up the dishes finally and he settled himself to think it over.

"Io," he began. "I know what happened today. About Fluff Hartwick. I know what you did, even about the thirty dollars!"

"Oh!" Laughter shook through her. "She's hopeless. Regular little moron, Lan. Why, she promised faithfully not to tell."

The week-end rushed away. Saturday morning Alan said, "I suppose you won't go down today, Io? Drive you down if you are?"

It was the first time he had suggested that. She smiled and shook her head.

Sunday they spent at home.

She made gingerbread after Janey's recipe for Sunday night supper and served it hot with whipped cream. Alan saw it with a wide, white grin.

"Lordy! Say, this is a heap o' living. Was getting good and tired of German eats. But listen, Frills; how're you going to manage? On the job early and late it'll be hard for you to run the house, won't it?"

"No," she tossed off airily, "I meant to tell you, darlingest. I've quit the job. Resigned Friday."

"You—oh, you've quit the job?" His face was blank. "Well, you've quit the job!"

She said nothing more and presently his astonishment gave way to deep thought. "But your house, Io? The one we—you—have been planning so long? And you gave Fluff all that—"

She shrugged and smiled.

He did a thing he never had done in his life before that evening.

He set the alarm.

He, too, had a bout with figures. Many figures trooping in a row, standing all too solidly, massed for struggle. He wore out a pencil point on them, shaking his head, brows together.

Papa Weimar called him; told him to choose a stenographer from the girls in the outer office. His glance went over the lot; rested upon a woman in a black dress. Gray-haired, spectacled, with large, capable hands. She looked up and her eyes twinkled at him in a humorous way.

"I'd like Mrs. Hanley, sir, if you can spare her."

"Es tut mir lied! You'd take the best I have?"

"I need the best, sir. Been planning some new publicity and—"

"So? Good."

By the time he had helped established Mrs. Hanley at Fluff's old desk and explained to her his plans it was afternoon. When he started out for lunch his feet took him to the Greek Letter Club. He was half way into the building before he brought up short, stood a moment with his puzzled scowl, went dashing out again.

Round the corner to an arm-chair lunch—coffee and sinkers. He was barely ten minutes getting away with those. Since there was nothing to do afterward he went back to the office and started in again at his work.

At four o'clock, time he usually decided to call it a day, he was dictating a long report. This had knocked about his desk for two months; it was a tedious thing, filled with detail, and he had kept putting it over for another day.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

The Princess Interrupts Her Tale to See "Aunt Anna"

"YOU mustn't use that word 'bother' in connection with me," I told Princess Olina of Transvania reproachfully. "Remember, I am ready and anxious to serve you in any way."

I dared make no more pointed comment upon her allusion to the mysterious person who had paid her "a fortune" for delivering a message, even though I was sure that in it lay the whole explanation of the sinister lurking menace which she so feared. But she volunteered no further explanation of her words, and I conjectured that only the most imminent danger would wrest that secret from her. A moment later I keenly regretted speaking at all, for instead of continuing the story of her escape from the royal Transvanian party while its members were in the United States, she asked an anxious question abruptly:

"How is Anna? May I go to her?"

Would she ever finish her story to me? This was the query sharply present in my mind even as I told her what the nurse had said. Perhaps it was only my fancy, but it seemed to me that she had intangibly drawn back into that part of herself where a princess reigned.

With an imperious gesture she flung the blanket back and rose from the bed.

"She is calling for me, my poor Anna," she said, as she went swiftly toward the door. "Don't you see? She is calling 'Lina!' That was always her name for me, always. Of course she never would do it if she were conscious, and Henry is protecting me, as he thinks, by saying there is no 'Lina.'"

I was close behind her and before she had reached the door of her old nurse's room, I put a compelling hand upon her arm.

"Remember the nurse and the Tigers!" I whispered. "You must not arouse their suspicions."

She stopped and turned a startled face to me.

"Thank you!" she whispered back. "I'll be careful. But come with me, and if you think I'm saying the wrong thing, touch my arm."

I followed her into the room where the sick woman in delirium was still moaning "Lina." The man who had posed as Eleanor Lincoln's uncle looked up from the bed and I saw him make a quick impulsive gesture as of warning. But the girl went swiftly over to him and put her hand on his shoulder.

"Oh, Uncle Henry!" she said softly, but slightly stressing the name, "Mrs. Graham tells me that Aunt Anna is calling 'Lina.' I am sure she means me. Have you forgotten that when I was a little thing and couldn't twist my tongue to Eleanor, I used to call myself 'Lina' and that Aunt Anna used to call me that sometimes?"

She was leaning over him gazing fixedly into his eyes, and I knew that she was trying to convey a message to his usually active brain, dazed just now by grief. For a long second he returned her gaze, then the tense muscles of his face relaxed into relief.

"Ya, I remember now," he said, and then the nurse intervened.

"I only can have one person in the room," she said firmly. "And you can do no good by remaining," she added, addressing the young chatelaine of The Larches. "Your aunt will not come out of this delirium for some time, and I do not wish her disturbed. I am glad to know that you are the 'Lina' she's been calling. Please do not leave the place until she regains consciousness, so that I may call you at once if she asks for you then."

Princess Olina had lifted her head with something very near arrogance as the nurse began her strictures, but her reply to the little speech was submissively courteous.

"Of course I shall remain within call," she said. "Will you come back to my room with me, Mrs. Graham?" and as I nodded my acquiescence and followed her down the corridor, I wondered tensely if she would resume the fascinating tale of her adventures in escaping from a distasteful royal marriage.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, September 7

IN a general way this may not be a day of great achievements, according to the astral testimonies, but it is likely that whatever does occur will be memorable. Affairs long hidden or surrounded by subtlety or mystery may be ruthlessly dragged into the light, and with vigor if not violence. Although the means may be tumultuous or turbulent, results may show a clarified state of affairs. Be careful with money.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of surprising denouements, in which subtle and hidden things in their relations may be brought to the light, possibly by ruthless or turbulent methods. Eventually this may clear up baffling or intriguing conditions. Be wise in handling funds.

A child born on this day may be ardent and vigorous as well as resourceful. But he should be taught to rule his tongue and his temper, lest they cause loss. Frugality should also be taught.

Man in a normal state is an organized compound of all the elements of the Universe.—ADA MUIR.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

SECOND HONEYMOONS

"SECOND HONEYMOONS" are becoming more and more popular. I mean "second honeymoons" with the same "used" husband and the original model wife.

Whether it comes after a long life of perfect love or after a separation and reunion, a second honeymoon is far more restful and less disappointing than the most thrilling first honeymoon!

* * *

There is no gaudily staged wedding, to leave the bridegroom a nervous wreck and the bride all frazzled out after the struggle with florists, caterers and trousseau fittings. There are no chattering bridesmaids, practical jokers or weeping mothers to distract the lovers from the real sentiment of the affair.

HELEN ROWLAND

You just pick up a toothbrush, a handbag and a pair of comfy house slippers and step casually off, on the spur of the moment, to some happy old haunt or new scene, where you can be alone together.

The bride suffers no shock of disappointment or chagrin when the bridegroom fails to notice her imported new negligee or the real lace insets in her crepe de Chine things; and no bitter disillusionment when she sees him without a collar, padding around in his bare feet with his hair all mussed up.

She isn't "hurt" when he centers his attention on a book or shows a healthy interest in a porterhouse steak, or goes out to get a shave without kissing her good-bye.

She does not lie awake half the night wondering if she has made a "mistake" every time he answers her questions with a grunt or tells her that her nose needs powdering.

By the time the "second honeymoon" comes around, most of a man's notions about feminine perfection and the duties of a wife have been completely revised, and he is not looking for either gilt wings or horns. And most of a woman's tender sensibilities and sore spots have become comfortably calloused, so that she can devote herself to something besides self-pity.

In fact, NO honeymoon journey should be taken with a brand new husband or a perfectly strange wife. The honeymoon should be saved up for the day of dead calm, when you have gotten used to each other, and can actually enjoy the change and the scenery.

And no second honeymoon should be spent at the SAME place as the first honeymoon in an effort to recapture the first thrills. There is no road BACK to romance!

But the second honeymoon can be far sweeter than the first and far more glamorous and full of tenderness. For then, at last, you KNOW your heart—and love is no guessing-game!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Cancer Is Curable if Treated in Time

EVERYBODY is afraid of cancer because almost every family has contributed to the cancer death rate. It is a disease found everywhere, attacking all ages and reaching into every station of life. Cancer is so fatal and apparently so hopeless that it has created for itself almost universal fear. The dread of it is everywhere.

DR. COPELAND

Last month there was a great convention in London. Scientists foregathered from every part of the earth. The debates were limited to one subject—the cause and cure of cancer.

Seeking to gather from the reports of this congress a message of cheer, I found something I want you to remember. Sir Berkeley Moynihan, the famous surgeon, said:

"Cancer is not sometimes, but always curable when taken early enough. The public needs education. The fear of cancer is the real 'king of terrors.' When people face the truth and treat unusual growth quickly—truth will set them free."

It must be admitted, of course, that the disease may be far advanced before it is found. The growth may be so located that it is not discovered until it has gone too far. But great progress is being made. By means of the X-ray and other modern methods of diagnosis, the doctors are much better prepared to discover the malady in its early stages. Fear is a crucial master. The dread of being told the suspicious growth or raw spot is really cancer binds many a tongue. It makes many a secret sufferer dumb with misery.

What can I say to make you speak? What can I tell you to make you visit your doctor?

Nine times out of 10—yes, 999 times out of 1,000—the local trouble you have decided in your own mind to be cancer, is of no consequence whatever. A simple chronic ulcer, a harmless wart, a fatty tumor, the unusual shape of a normal organ, or what is really a natural prominence—it is more likely that one of these conditions is what has caused your mental disturbance.

Common sense tells you, if you believe what I say, that it is silly to permit your mind to fester with fear. One word from the doctor will set you free from your misery.

Now let us look on the dark side: Suppose your fears are all well founded and that you really have cancer?

Its early discovery will enable your doctor to cure you. Remember Sir Berkeley's words: "Cancer is not sometime, but always curable when taken early enough."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE LONELY LADY

By ERIC HEATH

HER dressing table was covered with invitations for the week-end. There were several house parties she could go to; the Russian ex-duke she had met the week before urged her to be the guest of honor at his theater party; several prominent society women had written her cordial personal notes asking her to visit them, either for special functions, or just informally.

Sonya Vronskaya dropped her beautiful head into the palms of her hands. Her temples ached. When she raised her tired eyes to the mirror again, they looked back at her wistfully.

"How alone I am!" It was almost a sigh that escaped from her lips. "How lonely I have been all these years," she added thoughtfully.

She studied her reflection in the glass intently. Though she would be 39 in just three days, she looked hardly older than 25. Her skin was as soft and smooth as a child's. She had always taken excellent care of her skin, her hair, teeth, figure. She had had to, in her profession.

But it was really the singing, she decided, that had kept her young. How she loved it! The most discerning critics had commented that the secret of her overwhelming success on the operatic stage lay principally in the fact that she sang to each audience with fresh enthusiasm. With her singing she seemed to caress her audience, raise it with her into an ethereal atmosphere of tenderness, fire, romance, love.

Ever since childhood, she had loved to sing. It had seemed to her that she was only alive then, when she was singing.

"Loneliness is the price I must pay for my singing," she thought.

For, as her birthday approached, she realized how desperately lonely she was. She had spent many birthdays in the midst of throngs, people who had admired her personality alone. But now she did not want to accept a single invitation. She had found out that in trying to be gay and merry with other people she was really more lonely than if by herself. It was a strange conclusion but her experience had brought the truth of it to her.

Moreover, she was tired to death of "functions," as they are called. There had been so many of them. They were all more or less alike: the same people, the same show, the same conversation.

"If only I had someone of my very own," she thought, "to spend my birthday with,—then I could be happy."

She thought back over what might have been, had she chosen marriage instead of a career. She thought of the boy who, 20 years ago, had stood before her with flashing eyes and denounced her as a traitor to their love because she would not give up her career to marry him.

"But I couldn't do otherwise," she thought, "when singing meant all of life to me."

Nevertheless, she felt a longing to see again that boy who might have been her very own. If she could spend her birthday with him! Perhaps some of the happiness, the illusion of those old days might come back to her.

But was it possible? How could she find him? She no longer knew where he was.

There was a little French cafe in Greenwich Village where they had always had their holiday meals together. Was it still in existence she wondered?

She decided to find out. At any rate, this would be an unusual adventure.

With some difficulty she located the French cafe which was still in the same place, but had changed hands many times since she had last been there.

She inquired of the proprietor whether Max Brocton ever came there. The little Frenchman's face lighted up at the name.

"He comes on holidays," he answered. "Usually New Year and Thanksgiving. Last time he came Christmas."

Sonya's heart leaped.

"Do you know where he lives?" she asked.

"Not exactly, but I think I could find him."

She pressed some money into his hand, begging him to send someone to bring Max Brocton there if he was to found. Then she sat down in one of the little booths to wait. She had come late, after seven, believing that very possibly Max would be unable to arrive earlier.

Over an hour passed, and she was about to give up hope, when a boy entered the room followed by a tall, stoop-shouldered man of middle age. His hair was grey at the temples and he was dressed rather shabbily.

At first Sonya did not recognize him. It was only when she looked into his eyes that she knew he was Max.

He came toward her uncertainly.

"You wanted to see me—" he began. Then he saw who she was, and an expression of surprise and joy came into his face.

"You, Sonya," he cried softly, as he took the chair by her side. "I never thought I would see you again. I've often tried to find you. You seemed to have disappeared completely and I wondered if you had gone back to the old country. What have you been doing?"

"I've been working," she returned. "And you, Max?"

"Yes, working too," he answered.

She was wearing an old discarded suit, that she had once given to her maid, and a rather shabby velvet hat.

"Then he does not know," she thought, for she had wondered whether Max had ever heard of her success.

"Vronskaya" was her stage name, and it was soon evident to her that the man did not dream of connecting her with the celebrated singer.

They ordered joyfully the sort of meal they used to like in the old days.

"Do you know what day it is?" she asked him.

He looked at her reproachfully. "Of course," he said. "I've never forgotten your birthday."

"I was lonely," she explained, "and I wanted to spend this day with an old friend. You are the one I thought of."

He smiled.

"I'm glad of that," he returned, "but you have lots of other friends, haven't you, Sonya? Are you—are you getting along all right?"

"Oh, yes," she answered, sensing his unspoken thought that she was perhaps in need of money or help of some sort.

"And you are married, I suppose?" she questioned.

"Yes. We have three children."

"Three?"

"Yes. The youngest is almost 6."

"Tell me about them," she begged.

But what he left untold meant more to Sonya than the words he said.

"He is lonely, too," she thought, although he has a family. That is why he eats his holiday meals here instead of at home."

He told her he dreamed of sending his oldest son to college the following year.

"I'm going to try to do it," he said simply, but Sonya sensed in the tone something of the struggle he was having to attain this end.

"You must be happy with your children," she said.

"Well," he returned, "children grow up, you know. Somehow, they grow away from you. They have their own lives to live . . . "After a long pause, he went on, 'My wife and I haven't much in common. We get along all right, for the sake of the children, but—"

Sonya gazed at his lined face, wistfully. He was a failure and she a success, as the world counts failure and success, but they were both lonely . . . She had her singing, he his children, and yet—? What was it that life had done to them?

"I won't see him again," Sonya decided that night as she lay in bed. "He is too different from that happy boy I once knew. I wonder if I am so different from what I used to be too?"

She did not see him again. But she sent him an anonymous gift, more than enough to see his eldest son through school.

This was Sonya's gesture of farewell, before she abandoned herself to the loneliness of her career.

How does the modern girl go "husband hunting?"

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

St. Louis Toughest Spot in League for Pirates —Sam Jones, Cast-off Pitcher, Thorn in Side of Yankees—Weight-Making Finally "Gets" Sande, Like Other Jockeys.

AS FAR as its meaning anything to Pittsburgh in a pennant sense is concerned, the Pirate-Cardinal series opening in St. Louis this afternoon is not the vitally important one it promised to be less than a week.

Defeats suffered at the hands of the Redbirds and Cubs practically ruined the Pirates' last remaining chance, so that even if the Bucs were to take four straight in the Mound City and the Cards were to bag only 10 of their 19 games thereafter it would be necessary for the Bushmen to capture 13 of their 18 games after leaving Missouri in order to beat out McKechnie's crew.

Bill Sherdel.

BUT the series is important in other directions, for all that, and calls for the best ball the Corsairs can produce. Even though first place may be out of reach, it is up to the Bucs to finish in the highest other position possible.

If they can trip the Cards they will have a chance to gain on the Reds or Cubs who will be cutting each other's throats meanwhile.

BESIDES it may have a bearing on the final pennant fighting.

If the Cards get past this series and the following three games with Cincinnati without a serious reverse, they will have little or nothing to fear on the Eastern trip.

But if the Pirates and Reds succeed in knocking them out of their stride and the Giants continue to win in the meantime there may be some semblance of a fight between St. Louis and New York in the home stretch though the chances now appear to be all in favor of the Cardinals.

IT WILL be necessary for the Bucs to show a reversal of their previous form against the Cards if they are to pick up any ground in this series. The Redbirds have been the biggest obstacles of the season in their path, having beaten them 13 times in 18 meetings, and the games play in St. Louis have been particularly troublesome. Of the seven contests decided there so far the Forbes Field ballers have won only two, Grimes beating Alexander 4 to 3 and Fussell vanquishing Haines 2 to 0. Bill Sherdel has been a tougher hoodoo to the Rovers than Either Alexander or Haines. He has beaten the Bucs three times without losing a game to them, and besides he went in as a relief man on one other occasion and held safe a victory that might have slipped away. In all operations against Sherdel year, the Bucs have scored a l of only five runs.

Sam Jones.

IF THE Yankees are beaten out by the Athletics for the American League pennant, their flag failure will be due to the activities of one of their discarded pitchers, Sad Sam Jones.

Jones crossed the path of the Hugmen again in the first game of yesterday's double-header, with the usual result. He

M'GIRR SIGNS MELLOW-GANS

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, today announced that he will stage the first show of his indoor season in the Palisades roller rink Thursday night of next week. Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, and California Joe Gans, Negro lightweight, will appear in the 10-round bout.

The Motor Square Boxing Club will stage its first show on the night of Monday, October 1. Manager Hernon has virtually closed for Chuck Wiggins, of Indianapolis, veteran light-heavyweight star who has boxed all of the leading lightheavies and heavies, including Gene Tunney, to meet Garfield Johnson, local Negro flash, in the 10-round main event.

GRIMES MAY PITCH AGAINST HAINES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—The day of rest and relaxation tending to pep them up in no small degree, the Pirates this morning looked forward to this afternoon's battle with the Cardinals in a mood of optimism. As the series opens the Redbirds are four games ahead of the Giants and Cubs, who are almost tied for the runner-up position. The Reds and Buccos, in a practical deadlock for fourth place, are seven games removed from the top.

NEED VICTORIES

If you subscribe to the law of averages you would have no hesitancy in predicting that the Pirates will win at least three of the four games scheduled in the last series of the season between the two clubs. To date the Buccos and Cards have tangled 18 times and on no less than 13 of these occasions have the Redbirds fluttered away with the victory ribbon. Therefore, it would seem to be meet for the Pirates to assert themselves. If the Pirateers won all four of the fights they would still be two shy of an even break for the season.

Boots Grantham is not with the team and it is believed that he will not get in any of the scraps with the Cardinals. The regular first baseman is taking treatment for an attack of pleurisy. Accordingly,

Dukes May Better '27 Grid Showing

By JESS M. CARVER.

IF THERE is strength, as well as safety in numbers, the 1928 gridiron champion may well be Elmer Layden's Dukes of Duquesne University.

Elmer Layden.

Yesterday afternoon, the greatest squad in the history of the school, in point of numerical strength at least, reported to Coach Layden and his new assistant, Pat Reagan, of Canonsburg, on the Bluff gridiron. Eighty men were in full or partial uniform, the great majority being newcomers. The coaches and managers made no pretense of knowing many of the names—for that matter, some of the boys are so green and "freshmany fresh" that they have trouble knowing themselves.

It is too much to expect the Dukes to turn out a world-beating eleven this fall. It is hoped that the record may be a bit of an improvement over that of last year, and the 1927 season was not one over which to shed tears. Even if Layden were the greatest coach in the world—(for all one knows, he may be at that)—it would be ask-

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

EVERY once in a while there is some sort of an eruption in college athletics such as the one of the last few days in which a young athlete, Walter Berger, of Homestead, was involved. Allegheny College gathered him in on the eve of his slated departure for the football camp of the University of Pittsburgh and was accused in some quarters of virtually "stealing" him from Pitt. Pitt contended that he was coming to its fold of his own accord, after having first decided to enter Allegheny, and then was induced by Allegheny to change his mind again. Allegheny's retort courteous was that he never would have thought of forsaking it if undue pressure had not been exerted in an effort to lure him to the Panthers.

There is considerable of this stuff going on among practically all of our colleges and universities in the matter of corraling star athletic talent, and it is only to be expected that occasionally an instance will receive widespread publicity. Few institutions will admit culpability. As a result, it is no wonder that young boys in many cases play one offer against another to gain all they can out of their athletic ability when the time comes to enter college.

THE two leading contenders for the welterweight championship, both of them sensational performers, will be seen in action at Motor Square Garden during the coming indoor boxing season, unless present plans and negotiations miscarry. The pair are Young Corbett, of San Francisco, who recently defeated Jack Zivic on the coast and knocked out the hard-hitting Nick Testo, of Troy, N. Y., and Young Jack Thompson, of Los Angeles, the young Negro who last week knocked out Joe Dundee, the welterweight champion of the world, in a non-championship match in Chicago.

Manager John Hernon, of Motor Square, is in touch with the managers of both stars, and has some assurance that he will be able to land them for bouts. Young Corbett formerly made his home here. He was born in Italy in May, 1905, and when he was a baby his parents came to the United States and settled in Pittsburgh, where they resided until 10 years ago, when they moved to California. His real name is Paul Giordano. A cousin, Ralph Manfredo, who formerly boxed here under the name of Young Manfredo, frequently appearing in the old Power House in Penn avenue, is the lad's manager. Corbett, a southpaw, is reputed not to have lost a decision in three years. He holds a victory over Thompson. Following a bout with Sammy Baker in Madison Square Garden, New York, next week, he expects to come to Pittsburgh for an extended visit amid his boyhood surroundings.

OPENING GAMES SLATED SEPT. 16

By TOM BIRKS

THE American Soccer League will open its season September 16. That was finally settled when President Jimmy Agnew announced that the Westinghouse club of last season's International League, had applied for membership in the big loop.

The postponement of the opening games suits all of the managers. Balsarini, at Heidelberg, asked a delay, and it also suited the German club and National Tube. The sixth member has not been decided upon, but it will probably be Coverdale. It was also finally decided that the Monongahela Division will operate. The meeting at the Hotel Main, with Stark in charge, flashed plenty of action for the season.

The letter from National President Armstrong Patterson to the Pittsburgh newspapers on Tuesday rather puts the newly created insurgent organization on the defensive, and now, as a sequel to that letter, the West Penn Football Association should, under a five-year suspension, order the pseudo officials to quit sending communications through the mail signed "West Penn Football Association." This olive branch stuff is all right, but sometimes iron-hand methods must be used. The time has come for drastic methods by Harry Fairfield and his official board. For a time, in fact ever since it was broached that an outlaw body was in the first stages of construction, there was a natural feeling to laugh at its efforts. But when players, teams and managers take a good chance of heavy suspension from organized soccer football at the discretion of the local governing body, then it gets beyond the laughable stage.

SHOULD BE NOTIFIED

And now the West Penn Football Association, through its secretary, Pat Donahoe, should notify the men whose names are being transmitted to teams all over the district, that unless they get into organized soccer and quit making offers in the matter of registration forms, a 10-year suspension will accrue.

Teams and managers, together with players, are hereby notified that signing forms not countersigned by Pat Donahue may lead to an indefinite suspension, and this suspension will take effect all over the United States.

Just what the object of the outlaw association is, is beyond the writer. There is plenty of room in organized soccer for men who want to work for the sport without financial gain, where the applying of its rules must be done without fear or favor. So why form outlaw bodies? Armstrong Patterson, president of the United States Football Association, is one of the most likable fellows in the world, but if the trouble-makers persist in creating discord, the heavy hand will fall.

SEASON OPENS SOON

It is evident the season hereabouts will open a week from Saturday, or September 15. Two leagues on which nothing has been written will make their appearance at that time. Chartiers Valley will meet at Burdine tomorrow evening, and it is possible Mike Quinn and his colleagues will find out just what part Henry Bierman played in the organization of the newly formed body. Bierman is classed as its vice president.

On Sunday, two games will be played in pre-season effort to get into shape. Westinghouse plays the McKeeport National Tube eleven at Chambers Field. At Turner Park, the German Sport Club opens its season with the Pittsburgh Celtics.

The proposed league around McKeesport will not operate this season. George Hill was sponsor of the loop, but it did not materialize. Instead, Westinghouse and the National Tube will be in the American League. This is a good move, for it will bring Heidelberg into new territory, and the Tube and Westinghouse also will show for the first time around Panhandle towns.

DUKES

ing too much to expect him to whip together an eleven capable of playing successfully through the difficult schedule that confronts the Dukes. I doubt if Layden will even get to know all his men by the time the season comes to a close.

However, with the number of lettermen back, and with the class and strength possessed by some of the freshmen, the Dukes can look forward with some degree of hope to bettering the 1927 record.

In viewing the great squad as it was put through its paces yesterday, it was plainly evident there is no little football ability enclosed in its somewhat unwieldy bulk. There are plenty of big men for the line; no small amount of speed for the backfield.

Layden is not badly off for veteran material. He has his Lallys, Clarks, Kellehers, Kirbys, Guerriers, Silversteins, Pratts, Eberts, Kemps, and O'Donnells with which to develope a line.

In the backfield he should be able to build a healthy offensive around Capt. Donnelli, Benedict, Burns, McCarthy, Steeves and Kovolchek.

Among the new men who are being counted on for strength, both on the line and in the backfield are Bud DeVenny, Tovella, Sullivan and Varrito.

In Capt. Donnelli the Duquesne coaches have as good a punter and kicker as will be found on any varsity in the section. Buff, who learned his booting on the soccer field, gets both distance and elusiveness to his kicks—and he can use any foot.

Col. Bo McMillin of Geneva told me that Donnelli was the best college kicker he had ever seen for getting the ball away.

Then, McCarthy, who played quarterback some last year, can also boot 'em down the field. He gets better height to his kicks, but not the distance, nor does he get them away as well.

It will not be surprising to see the Dukes spring a tricky and effective aerial game this year. Ganzy Benedict, Joe Guerrier, Sammy Pratt, Burns and McCarthy can learn to handle that part of the game well.

The Dukes had a fair defensive eleven last year—better defensively than offensively. This was because the boys were not familiar with the Notre Dame system. If they have gained in efficiency in the Rockne style of play by now, or if they do gain, then it is possible that their entry into Big Four football this fall may be with a bang.

The big game on the Duke card is the Wash-Jeff battle. It is a game that Duquesne has small hopes of winning, though I do believe the boys will enter the battle inspired with the idea of making as good an offensive as a defensive showing. It will be a feather in the cap of the Dukes to hold the Presidents to a low score, but it will be a greater feather if they score.

The end came at 10:12 o'clock to the tune of deafening cheer from 150,000 onlookers who appreciated the game battle.

Norman Ross of Chicago, who set the pace for five miles, had to quit as George Young passed him at the five-mile buoy, and Young in turn was overcome by the frigid water after leading for about one and one-half miles. Vierkoettes then assumed first place and held onto it with ease until the chill in the water finished him at 6:42 o'clock.

Olive Gatterdam, 16-year-old mermaid from Seattle was forced to give up the race before finishing the first two and one-half mile lap.

The first game, that with Slippery Rock Normal, will give the boys all the testing they need. Then comes the game on October 6 at Scranton with St. Thomas, coached by Jack Harding, former Pitt quarterback. The following week, the Presidents will be played and then Loyola of Baltimore.

After meeting Loyola, the Red and Blue will face five consecutive Conference battles, meeting Geneva at Beaver Falls, Westminster, Thiel, Bethany and Waynesburg at Pittsburgh. The Thiel game will be played on the gridiron in the Pitt Stadium.

The schedule is a hard one, and does not hold a single easy game. Five wins out of the nine games will tickle the Dukes—more of course, will add to their joy. They will face powerful foemen in both Westminster and Geneva in the Conference and Slipper Rock plays football nearly on a par with the Class B college teams hereabouts.

Photos of the Duquesne University gridders will appear in Saturday's issue. Tomorrow, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will contain Jess Carver's football prospect story on Carnegie Tech, along with photographs of the Tartans.

baffled the famed Gotham sluggers and trimmed them, 3 to 1. Sam has downed the Yanks four times in five starts this year, and in his last three games against them he has held them to a total of only four runs and 20 hits. It was by only a 3-to-2 score that he was defeated in one game that he lost.

THE Robins hung up a season's record when they made eight errors in the first game against Boston yesterday.

However, they did not approach the modern major league high mark, which is 12 errors in one game, set by the Tigers on May 1, 1901, and equaled by the Whitesox on May 6, 1903. The National League high mark is 11, established by St. Louis against Pittsburgh on April 19, 1902, and duplicated by the same club against Cincinnati on July 3, 1909.

EXPLAINING his decision to retire as a jockey after he has fulfilled his engagement to ride in the Futurity, Earl Sande, king of the saddle for 10 years and the most colorful rider of his time, says he has been driven to it by the same undermining factor that has ended many other turf careers—the strain of making weight.

SANDE, suffering from stones in the kidneys and unwilling to risk an operation in his present weakened state, says he has reached the stage when reducing to make any such figure as 117 pounds, saps his vital forces. He fears he will not be able to stand it much longer.

Earl Sande.

"That is the reason why I am thinking of purchasing a few horses and trying my luck as an owner and a trainer," Earl is quoted.

"WITH that thought uppermost, I asked John E. Madden to name the sum he would take for Farmer. When he said $25,000 I dismissed the matter from my mind. That was too much money for me to lay out in one race horse.

"I haven't finally decided on any plans for next year. I don't know just what I'll do. I may regain my health and strength and it may be possible for me to ride in stake races where the weights, 122 and 126 pounds, will permit me to continue my calling.

"BUT as that is merely a chance, I thought it advisable to see if I couldn't buy two or three horses and train them. Then I might get some horses belonging to other turfmen to train. I couldn't afford to buy a $25,000 colt. When Mr. Madden named that figure for Farmer I gave up all idea of purchasing him, much as I'd like to own him. I think he will develop into a nice 3-year-old.

"I intend to have a talk with Mr. Widener (Joseph E. Widener) before he leaves for Europe for the winter. He has been a friend to me as well as an employer and I will be guided by his advice. Of course, my health will be the foundation of our thoughts when we talk over plans for the future."

Sigman, McFowler Battle Tonight

IKE McFOWLER, sensational Negro heavyweight, of Johnstown, makes his main bout debut in this section tonight, when he faces Jim Sigman, of Toledo, former Navy heavyweight champion, in the 10-round windup under the auspices of Promoter Jules Beck at the Duquesne Steel baseball park. The advance sale indicates the best crowd of the outdoor season. The fans evidently are interested in the heavies.

McFowler has beaten Tiny Jim Herman, Ad Stone and Sandy Seifert in recent battles, while Sigman has boxed Battling Levinsky, Jack Renault, Monte Munn, Hoot Burger and other notables and is matched with K. O. Christner, of Akron, at Massillon, O., next Wednesday night and with Bearcat Wright, of Omaha, September 20.

Promoter Beck has arranged an attractive preliminary card of four six-round bouts. He has Slambang Taylor, of the North Side, matched with Mule Brown, the Negro welterweight, in the semi-final; Joe Louder and Joe Kyburski in the third bout; Battling Gizzy, of Donora, and Young Angelo, of Swissvale, in the second bout, and Bobby Burns, of Swissvale, and Al Waldeck, of Tarentum, in the opener. The first bout is scheduled for 8:30 daylight saving time.

Willie Davies and Luis Carpentero, the Filipino of Toledo, have been matched to box the 10-round windup at the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, next Monday night.

Jack Katkish now is boxing under the management of Jim Buchanan, of Charleroi, and is in training for his postponed bout with Cuddy DeMarco at Washington, Pa., next Monday night.

Young Stribling meets an opponent who should be easy picking for him in Johnny Squires, of South Africa, in the opening show of the season in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight. Jack Dorval and Jack Warren box the semi-final; Marco Polo, of McKees Rocks, and Gene Baker, of Johnstown, also are on the bill, the former meeting Marvin Schaefer, and the latter Johnny Krieger in four-round battles.

Cowboy Jack Willis and Rene De Vos meet tonight in their 10-round bout in Chicago, postponed from last Thursday night.

Young Nanci, of Swissvale, boxes Harry McCarthy, of Cincinnati, in a 10-round bout at Ft. Thomas, Ky., tonight.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Brooklyn—Roberto Roberti defeated King Solomon, 10 rounds; Amadeo Grillo knocked out Frankie Cavanaugh, 1 round; Nando Tassi knocked out Lee Williams, 4 rounds.

At Toledo—Andy Martin defeated Joey Thomas, 12 rounds; Art Knopp and Bert Lamb drew, 8 rounds; Murray Sherman defeated Freddie Middaugh, 6 rounds.

At Dayton, Ky.—Joe Anderson knocked out Tom King, 3 rounds; Patsy Cline knocked out Speedy Reynolds, 1 round; Billy Angelo knocked out Pat McDonald, 8 rounds.

P. Waner, Idle, Takes Lead From Rajah

Associated Press.

Big things took place in the Big Six yesterday. After a long upward climb, Paul Waner, merely by remaining idle, finally displaced Rogers Hornsby from the leadership by a four-point margin. While Waner's average stood still, at .380, the Rajah took part in a doubleheader against Brooklyn and failed to get a hit in six times at bat. A drop to .376 resulted. The standing follows:

	G.	AB.	R.	H.	Pct.
P. WANER, Pirates	132	527	126	200	.380
Hornsby, Braves	112	391	84	147	.376
Ruth, Yankees	132	426	142	153	.331
Cobb, Athletics	94	352	84	114	.324

Frisch, Cardinals	116	452	88	136	.301

Paul Waner will continue at first base for the Bushwhackers.

Burleigh Grimes is all set to face the Cardinals in the opener. Jess Haines may get the slip from Skipper McKechnie, but Bill might be constrained to use one of his crack southpaws. The Pirates have not been able to take the measure of Bill Sherdel or Clarence Mitchell this summer, a fact quite appealing to Skipper Bill.

It would seem incumbent upon the Pirates to start to winning at once if they are to remain in the fight. With only 22 more games to play, the Bushwhackers face the problem of winning a heavy majority of the games or dropping out of the flag chase. The Giants, despite the terrible pace shown by them during their Pittsburgh stay and for days after, are beginning to get troublesome again. They are playing good ball again and their supporters naturally will rally to their banner.

But the Giants, although they do not have to make more use of those perilous trips across the mountains, are not in for any soft time in the remaining weeks of the schedule. It is true that they have four doubleheaders with the Braves, but these contests are slated for Braves' Field and the Tribe, as a rule, is plenty tough for the Polo Grounders.

COOLIDGE CHOOSES TO RUN

STONEBORO, Pa., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Coolidge chose to run yesterday and won, not only once, but three times. Coolidge carried off three straight heats in the 2:34 trot event at the Stoneboro fair. He is owned by Penny Brothers, of Greensboro, N. C.

Panthers Welcome Baker's Arrival

CAMP HAMILTON, Windber, Pa., Sept. 6.—(Special.)—With the arrival of Eddie Baker, star sophomore center prospect, who came here from his home in Nanticoke yesterday, the hopes for a powerful Panther first string brightened considerably.

Although Baker was used at quarterback on the freshman team last season, he made such a remarkable showing at center during Coach Sutherland's spring training period that he undoubtedly will take a fling at the pivot job, which, until this time, has been contested by Tom Carr and Lester Anderson, sophomores.

The tackling dummy met with misfortune after five minutes of mauling yesterday. Whether the name had anything to do with it is a matter of conjecture, but it remains that "Howard," the block and tackle that supported "him," and the cross-bar over the tackling pit, tumbled with a terrific crash after a vicious dive by Eddie Baker.

CARNEGIE TECH

With the ending of the first week of football practice at Carnegie Tech, every one connected with sport activities has formulated a fairly accurate estimate of the probable makeup of the 1928 squad. Although Coaches Wally Steffen and Bob Waddell have been reluctant as to the probable makeup, there is little doubt that at least six positions on the varsity will be filled with members of last year's freshman eleven.

"From now on—Chesterfield!"

Mild enough for anybody . . . and yet they Satisfy*

*A PLAIN, unvarnished statement of fact: "Mild enough for anybody and yet they satisfy".

If you will light a Chesterfield and smoke it critically you will find no hint of harshness, but a certain mildness, with a rich, wholesome flavor.

Chesterfields satisfy without being harsh. They're mild without being insipid or tasteless.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Vending Robots Free Salesmen of Drudgery; Phonograph Attachment May Be Used as Bargain Announcer.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

FIVE years ago the Theater Guild produced "R. U. R." It was hailed by many of the critics as a masterpiece of satire, holding a mirror to the future of our mechanized civilization. In those days the Theater Guild was taken more seriously than at present. Anything bearing its stamp was canonized as art.

BUT "R. U. R." failed to live up to the critics' estimate. It was rather cheap melodrama. It was an old theme reworked in a not very interesting manner. The Frankenstein monster turning upon its master was an ancient idea. The Theater Guild has achieved art in some plays, but "R. U. R." was not one of them. "R. U. R." quietly ignored the fact that its Robots, representing modern machinery, are the liberators of labor.

THE Robots of "R. U. R." are not such an idle dream. Robots in our present-day life may not be altogether symbolical. They are in existence today. They are not flesh-and-blood Robots, but mechanical glorifications of the old penny-in-the-slot machines.

Machinery has stepped into practically every branch of manufacturing to do the drudgery and to make possible short hours and better pay, but it is a new thing in salesmanship.

HOW much selling actually takes place when you buy a package of Lucky Strikes? You enter the store knowing exactly what you want. You toss your money on the counter and walk out with your cigarets.

Such salesmanship is entirely automatic. It is being replaced with automatons in some cities. Undoubtedly they will soon be seen in Pittsburgh.

MANY of the larger chains of stores have been experimenting with vending machines to do the purely mechanical work of supplying the public such standard articles as cigarets, tooth paste, razor blades and shaving cream. The vending machine takes up little space. It has no wages. Its cost is small. The recent merger of five of the producers of the machines has consolidated enough influence and capital to achieve the new era in selling.

THE vending machine corners of the stores have machines for making change, so that the human element never enters into the sale. Vending machines will not replace the salesman. He will still be needed for the more difficult tasks of distribution, but he will be freed of purely automatic effort.

Vending machines are not sculptured in marble, but they are a monument to modern advertising. The business of convincing the public of the reliability of certain standard brands has reached its goal when the movement from the retailer to the consumer takes place without the contribution of the human element.

SOME of the machines have a phonograph attachment which thanks the customer and repeats the advertising slogan. This seems a silly novelty which will not impress the public when the newness has worn off. But mechanical selling has one great advantage. It will be a long time before anyone can perfect a machine which will follow up our purchase of Lucky Strikes by persuading us to take "a can of tobacco, a pouch, a tube of tooth paste and a 'genu-wine' briar pipe special offering today for only a dollar."

NEW HIGH RECORD MADE BY SUBURBAN ELECTRIC

Carnegie Metals continued to hold the center of the stage in fairly active trading in the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. The stock sold in substantial volume near its high mark of yesterday, and absorbed the offerings in good style. It was reported that the company is resuming operations in additional mines.

Suburban Electric Development was in good demand and sold higher. The Arkansas Natural Gas issues were active among the fuel shares and sold at slightly higher prices. American Window Glass Machine common sold higher at the opening, but the preferred was unchanged. Witherow Steel preferred sold at 71, a decline of two points from the previous transaction.

Suburban Electric Development set a new high record at 19½ in the later trading. The stock was in good demand as reports from the company indicated increasing sales of its products. Carnegie Metals continued active and strong, selling up to 21⅞.

The volume of trading was the heaviest in the Pittsburgh market for some time. Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Standard Sanitary common sold at higher figures.

who were informed that the chosen partner of H. R. H. was but an assistant in a drug store. It was also hinted that ladies more important socially were awaiting the honor of a dance with the Prince. Tactfully the matter was broached to the Prince and the fact of his partner's humble occupation communicated to him. His reply to the veiled reproach was typical:

"An assistant in a drug store," he said. "Well, it must be a jolly good drug store!"

Afterwards he fulfilled his "duty dances," and then returned once more to the partner of his first choice.

San Diego (California) was the next port of call. Here six American destroyers met the Renown and escorted her into the harbor, where Admiral Williams boarded the Prince's ship. Later the Mayor of San Diego, accompanied by influential residents, also came on board to pay their respects. The route was made impassable by the crowds. A gigantic open-air organ was installed and there followed an official dinner and a ball.

Mr. Wild, the Mayor of San Diego, in a speech of welcome, gave his opinion that the Prince was a "jolly good fellow" to the accompaniment of the broadest of smiles from H. R. H.

The Prince can never be called selfish or thoughtless. On all his tours he has taken a personal interest in the men of all ranks who have accompanied him on his travels. He asked specially that the crew of the Renown—all who could possibly be spared from duty—should be allowed to see the beauties and wonders of this part of California. As a result over 1300 sailors were entertained lavishly by the people of San Diego.

Tries Surf-Riding

The Hawaiian Islands, were the Prince's next stepping off place and here the official American welcome was only equaled by the native one. Smiling Hawaiian queens presented the Great White Prince with fruit of all kinds from their island, and insisted on decking him out with ropes of flowers. Smiling, H. R. H. submitted to all these demands on his person. Before leaving the Prince paid due respect to the remaining members of the Royal House of Hawaii.

Ever keen to indulge in sport, the Prince tried surf-riding, for which the Bay of Waikiki is famous. H. R. H. managed to extract enjoyment from this difficult sport with the minimum of practice, although he sustained with good humor several duckings. One morning at breakfast the captain of the Renown received a note signed by a member of the Prince's staff.

"His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has not yet crossed the Line. I am desired by H. R. H. to say that he is looking forward with interest to his meeting with His Majesty King Neptune and Amphitrite, his wife, and also to his initiation as a Freeman of His Majesty's domains."

On the morning of the mysterious proceedings, the "Companionship of the Royal Order of the Equatorial Bath" was conferred upon the Prince and in a tuneable voice, the Prince chanted a few verses which had been specially composed for the occasion, ending with the plea:

"I know I'm for it, King—so, boys,
"Don't let me keep the party waiting!"

With the exception of the call at Fiji, where the Papuan chiefs made their peculiar tributes to the Prince, the voyage was uneventful until the Renown reached Auckland on March 24, 1920, after a strenuous voyage of 14,000 miles. In New Zealand's fine harbor, a heterogeneous fleet assembled around the Renown.

Overwhelmed by Greeting

The Governor General came on board and the Prime Minister, members of the cabinet, the Mayor of Auckland and many other important officials and officers awaited on shore to greet the Prince. The ride to the Government House was triumphant. The Prince, overwhelmed by the warmth and sincerity of his greeting, stood up in his motor car with tears not far from his eyes.

On Anzac Sunday the Prince attended the religious service held in St. Mary's Cathedral and later at the Town Hall, and once more donning khaki, took his place to honor the glorious dead.

The Maoris were gathered in strong array and performed their native dances and ceremonies for the benefit of their honored guest. One of their chiefs afterwards read an address in which the Maoris gave their staunch promise that they would be true till death.

Hearing, late one night after his engagements were finished, the weird though musical playing of Maori music outside his bedroom window the Prince, without saying anything to his staff, walked through the windows of his room—which was on the ground floor—and went in search of the melody.

He found a group of natives not far away playing and singing to themselves. For an hour the Prince sat with them while they played to him—then rising to his feet he gave them 10 shillings each and returned back to bed.

Strike Causes Delay

While in New Zealand a strike of the railway workers suddenly dislocated the travel arrangements of the Prince's party. But, when concern was reaching its tensest point there came a message from the strikers that they were willing immediately to carry the Royal train anywhere and would see that it was not delayed. A settlement was effected within a few days and the tour continued. During the time he was waiting at Auckland the Prince paid many visits, both private and semi-official. Afterwards, at Franktown, the railwaymen announced through one of their spokesmen their regret that the Royal Tour had been delayed. "It was not much trouble to me," the Prince smiled in reply.

The inspections, visits and ceremonies in which the Prince took part must have proved very arduous but his interest was unflagging. During one stretch of the train journey, the Prince boarded the foot-plate and after a little coaching, drove the train at the rate of nearly a mile a minute for considerable distance.

He never forgot the primary reason for his visit and whenever industrial areas were visited or, when he was shown New Zealand products, he showed the keenest interest. He noted with appreciation and enthusiasm the smallholding schemes practised in New Zealand and was greatly impressed with the robust health of the people. In one of his speeches he confessed to a liking for farming and referred to his own scheme in Alberta which, with characteristic depreciation, he referred to as "in a small way."

The reception which was accorded the Prince in all parts of the country was tremendous.

Once, when the Prince's train was passing through a series of villages at night time, huge bonfires were lighted near every homestead in greeting to him.

In his farewell message to New Zealand, the Prince said: "I have felt from end to end of the Dominion that there is nowhere a British people more set in British traditions or more true to British ideals. I have found the strength of your loyalty to the Empire and its Sovereign as keen and bracing as mountain air."

INGERSOLL DIES IN SANITARIUM

DENVER, Col., Sept. 6.—(A.P.)—Robert H. Ingersoll, Michigan farmer boy, whose vision of a "dollar watch" resulted in the production of 75,000,000 of them, is dead.

The 69-year-old watchmaker died at a sanitarium here Tuesday of Bright's disease. News of his death was withheld until yesterday.

About seven years ago Ingersoll and his brother, Charles, lost control of their plant when competition and unfortunate investments forced them into bankruptcy.

Ingersoll's body will be removed to New York for burial.

He leaves his brother, Charles, who lives in New York, and another brother, Arthur, of Mahlwood, N. J.

BURIAL PARK PLANNED

Officers of the Allegheny County Memorial Park today announced plans for the construction of a modern type burial park in Duncan avenue extension, McCandless Township, to cost more than $1,500,000. Construction work has been started, it was announced.

The park consists of 100 acres and is to have a chapel and a tower of chimes 150 feet high. Rather than tombstones, each grave will be marked with a solid bronze tablet laid flush on the lawn. A permanent maintenance fund of more than $500,000 will provide interest to insure permanent care of each lot without cost to the property owners, the announcement said.

The officers are: Ralph B. Montgomery, president; Charles E. Dinkey, vice-president; R. R. Mason, vice-president; E. N. Calhoun, treasurer; H. F. Stambaugh, secretary; J. Homer Fisher, assistant secretary and treasurer; Philip Schaefer and Dr. Harry Goehring, directors.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Johanna Houlahen

Mrs. Johanna O'Connor Houlahen, 80, widow of John Houlahen and mother of the former county commissioner James Houlahen, died yesterday in her son's home at 221 North avenue, Millvale. She had lived in Millvale since 1870. Mrs. Houlahen was a member of St. Ann's Catholic church there and of several church societies. She leaves four sons, Jeremiah J. Houlahen and John L. Houlahen, both of Millvale; Daniel D. Houlahen of Etna and James Houlahen, now a member of county board for the assessment and revision of taxes; two daughters, Mrs. John W. Brown of Shaler township, and Mrs. Edward Waldman, of Glenshaw.

John B. McAteer

John B. McAteer, 65, of 5405 Stanton avenue, died yesterday at the Pittsburgh Hospital. He was born in Ireland and came to this country when a young man. For several years he lived in the West, eventually coming to Pittsburgh. He had been connected with the city Bureau of Water for 22 years before his retirement two years ago. When he retired he was assistant chief engineer at the Aspinwall filtration plant. He was a member of St. Rachael's Catholic Church. He leaves his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Mrs. Louise E. Foulke.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 6.—Mrs. Louise E. Foulke, 80, widow of the Rev. C. W. Foulke, died yesterday at the Shenango Valley Hospital, as a result of a fracture of the hip, when she fell down the porch steps of her home July 22. Mrs. Foulke was born in Harmonsburg, Crawford County. Her husband founded several Methodist churches of this city. She was a member of the first Methodist Episcopal Church. The Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association honored Mrs. Foulke with a gold medal for 50 consecutive years of service in the Sunday school.

Daub Funeral.

Funeral services for August Daub, 69, prominent Western Pennsylvania Mason, who died Tuesday night, will be held tomorrow afternoon at his late home, 245 Steuben street, Crafton. Burial will take place in Homewood Cemetery. Mr. Daub was a director of the Masonic Home at Elizabethtown, Pa. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Stein, with whom he made his home.

John H. Haines.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Sept. 6.—John H. Haines, 82, Civil War veteran, died here of heart failure. He fought in 23 major engagements. Haines was born in Freeport and lived there 17 years. He was a member of the One Hundred and Thirty-ninth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry.

Dr. H. J. Neely.

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 6.—Dr. H. J. Neely, 77, for 30 years a physician of Butler, died at his home yesterday following a heart attack. He was a graduate of Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Frances M. Phillips Neely, and a daughter, both of Butler.

17 DISTRICTS SUPPORT NEW AIRPORT SITE

Declaring the ideal site for the county airport is to be found at the junction of the William Penn highway and Monroeville road in Patton township, representatives of 17 communities last night adopted resolutions asking the county commissioners to consider that location. More than 150 persons attended the meeting held in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, Wilkinsburg, under the auspices of the Wilkinsburg Kiwanis club. The proposed site was said not to have been among the 167 sites considered by the committee which recommended the Mifflin township site.

The resolutions will be presented to the commissioners by a committee headed by John A. Lundee. The following communities were represented:

Wilkinsburg, Turtle Creek, Swissvale, Wilmerding, Braddock, Pitcairn, East Pittsburgh, Penn township, Patton township, Verona, Oakmont, Wall, Forrest Hills, East Liberty, East End, Edgewood and Wilkins township.

GIRL SEIZED IN RAID FINED

Arrested in a raid at 1004 Forbes street yesterday, Reda Mayee, 19, was fined $100 today in Morals Court, charged with keeping a disorderly house. Four men arrested in the house were discharged.

MINE WALLS' SAFETY TO BE DEBATED HERE

The commission assembling data from which will be framed legislation dealing with the required thicknesses of walls between mines will meet tomorrow in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Coal operators and mining engineers have been asked to present the commission information that will enable the commission to determine the minimum thickness, consistent with safety, for walls between adjoining mines.

In Memoriam 1-B

In memory of Lieut. Daniel W. Brooks who was killed in France, September 6, 1918.
Many times my thoughts have wandered
To a grave not far away,
Where they lay my loving Daniel
Just 10 years ago today.
Bitter grief a shock severe
To part with one we loved so dear.
Sadly missed by Mother, Sisters and Brothers.

Credit to Constable Able to See Law Broken

The quarterly return of constables to the courts on conditions in their districts no longer can be jokingly referred to as "the blind men's parade." One or two of the constabulary have been to the oculist, evidently. If not that, then the city has been smirched in the last three months. It no longer is the spotless town it has been reported to be for years and years. It now has a couple of blots. Isn't it a shame that our nice white scutcheon should become soiled in just a quarter of a year?

Seriously, though, credit should be given to Constable James McManus, of the Second Ward, who reported slot gambling machines and liquor in quite a list of places. Earl R. Sams, Negro constable of the Fifth Ward, reported the names of three alleged liquor law violators. That's something even though prohibition enforcement officers appear to be able to ascend the Hill at any time and make a half dozen or so successful raids.

Yet we ought to be glad to learn that many other parts of the city, publicly suspected of being at least a little soiled, are as pure as the driven snow—according to their constables. But perhaps we should buy them some specs, too.

Asphalt Trouble Probe Should Bring Betterment

The report of Hugh W. Skidmore, asphalt engineer from Chicago, that much of the asphalt work done by the city in recent years is of poor quality merely gives authoritative verbal confirmation of what is visibly evident in a great many parts of Pittsburgh. Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, says the department inherited old practices and methods and that good technical advice could point a way to improvement. Mr. Skidmore's report will be considered by a special committee of council and by engineers and officers of the asphalt division, bureau of streets.

The rapidity with which parts of asphalt surfaced streets wear out has long been a sign to citizens that there was fault somewhere and it appears Council went about the matter in the proper way to find out what was wrong. The engineer's report cites faulty mixtures and lack of uniformity in product of the city asphalt plant as a prime cause of much trouble. It is presumed there will be a change for the better now that the cause of expensive mistakes has been learned. There should be.

Hoover on Prohibition

Like Governor Smith, Needs No Interpreter.

Herbert Hoover does not call for volunteers to "interpret" vs on prohibition. What he said was clear.

: calls prohibition "a noble and important experiment." of that, heaven knows. To compel men to change from beer or wine to ice water suddenly requires nobility of character in those compelled, and willingness to experiment in those compelling.

We have discovered with the help of the bootlegger that such nobility is lacking here and there.

But Mr. Hoover's statement needs no interpretation. He says that while the law is there, it must be enforced. He objects to any attempt "direct or indirect to nullify the Constitution" and does NOT favor taking prohibition out of the Constitution. All that is plain enough without any interpreter.

Gov. Smith's speech of acceptance is clear. That also needs no "interpreter." He sees in prohibition a failure that increases crime, financed through bootlegging. He also believes that the law should be enforced, but he wants the law changed.

Both candidates believe that every man has a right to his own opinion on prohibition and on everything else, and that each man's opinion is entitled to respect—while he obeys the law.

New Ocean—New Danger

Protection in the Air Most Important.

A wise editor says, "Sea power has been the determining factor in the rise and fall of nations." True. But there are many "seas." Once the Mediterranean alone was important. Rome struggled to control it.

Then the Atlantic was the important "sea." Nelson and Blake triumphed on it, Elizabeth's buccaneers took gold from Spaniards as fast as they could bring it from South America. Now the Pacific becomes the important "sea."

But don't forget another sea, THE AIR, which is now the real ocean. Commercial navies will be protected on the surface of the water, as hitherto, airships PERMITTING.

The wise editor observes that "Dewey at Manila, Sampson and Schley at Santiago, ended the war with Spain."

So they did. But if Spain had had half a dozen bombing airplanes, commanded by such men as our Gen. Mitchell, Dewey, Sampson, Schley and their ships would now rest quietly on the bed of the ocean.

Let us cover the seas of the world with battleships and cruisers to protect a great commercial navy, in case we ever get one. But let us not forget to protect and control the most important ocean, the AIR.

Nevada Desert

ON THE NEVADA DESERT, Sept. 6.—Every city dweller is awed by the desert. The biggest box office movie successes in New York have been those depicting the camel riding sheiks dashing across the burning sands. It is a natural reaction of a massed civilization.

From Reno in a 40-mile drive one may reach the heart of the painted desert where the utter opulence of color is well nigh bewildering. The sun was merciless in its heat. All of us were gasping and the dog was frothing at the mouth as though mad. We passed three rattle snakes.

Just when we thought we could stand it no longer and prepared to turn back we came upon Pyramid Lake that lies like a sapphire jewel at the edge of the desert. It sets between fantastic crags and spires that gives it its name. The dog raced for the water and sat squatting up to his neck. He's no fool.

Pelicans and sea gulls swarmed overhead giving the effect of airplanes passing. Fishermen were casting for trout. And a mile or so away was a touch of modernity in a motion picture outfit taking a few shots.

Beyond was the trail of the hunter leading to the game bird of the desert—the sage hen. Reno is doubtless the sportsman's paradise for in a few hours' drive he can fish for mountain trout and hunt pheasants, mountain quail, rabbits and even coyotes and wildcats.

Frightened wild deer often race through Reno streets after dark. Coming back over the desert in the glow of a magnificent sunset a flivver carrying two Indians in costume passed. They waved pleasantly and I nearly unhinged my neck bowing.

There is something about meeting two lonely Indians on a lonely desert that would never, never draw me out of the house before breakfast. I would at least want a sip or so of coffe. The dog barked at them ferociously and if the looks we gave him could kill he would be a dead little dog.

Nevada has no corporation income tax, state inheritance tax or state stamp tax. It seems to offer every inducement possible to bring people here for permanent citizenship and as a result has a conglomerate citizenry—nobody, just as in New York, appears to have been born here.

The state has acquired a great deal of the boosting manner of its neighbor California, and while I doubt it will ever reach the Golden State opulence, it is making steady progress.

Tonight we are domiciled in a little suburb of Reno with no particular notion where we will go next. After a trip across a desert one hasn't much thought of going any place save to bed. About 12 miles away is Virginia City, once famous during the gold rush as the home of the Comstock Lode. Carson City is a drive of 30 miles and aside from being the capital has been the scene of many historic prize fights. Then there is Lake Tahoe about 50 miles away, which California has praised in song and story.

All of this Nevada country is intensely interesting and often inspiring, but my lot has been cast too long with cities. After a stretch of a few days in the great open spaces I long to hear street cars bump and the shrill of a crossing cop's whistle. Nature is oopsie-daisie and all that, but there is a gloss to our high speed civilization in cities. There are times when many of us feel we could leave New York and its madness and never return. But invariably a few weeks absence brings about a cure and we are panting for its theaters, cafes, zip and eternal hurrah. Isolated New Yorkers say a year away and all longing for the metropolis vanishes. I fear I would—all right, I'll shut up.

* * *

But I have some rights. And no matter what others may think, I could never care for a desert-horned toad!

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Geology and Dams

THE report of the Governor's Commission which investigated the causes of the disastrous breaking of the great St. Francis dam in California, last March, seems to have made very clear the need of consulting geological experts when large dams are to be constructed in regions where faults and weaknesses are known to exist in the rock strata on which the foundations of the dam are to rest. Dr. C. B. Longwell, of the department of geology at Yale, remarks of the commission's report that "the most significant conclusion is contained in one direct, unqualified sentence: 'The failure of St. Francis dam was due to defective foundations.'"

The plan and construction of the dam itself seem to have been beyond criticism, but "mica schist," a rock made up of thin, weak layers, or folia, is the bed rock beneath the bottom, and one side of the valley, at the dam site. Conglomerate composed of poorly cemented gravel and other detritus underlies the other valley wall. Thus the bedrock is inherently weak under the entire dam; but to make matters much worse, the conglomerate and schist are separated by a wide zone of shearing in which the rocks have been ground and mashed by powerful earth forces."

Thus after the event, the situation can be described in terms whose fateful meaning is clear even to the layman. How did the danger conceal itself from the dam builders? The geologic conditions of the valley itself were known to geologists before the dam was built, and Dr. Longwell avers that "no competent geologist would have approved the dam site without serious reservation, and probably very few would have consented to construction of the dam in that place under any consideration. But it does not appear that any geologist had a hand in selecting the site or in making inspection of the work as it progressed." Dr. Longwell goes on to say that the same geologists who took part in the "post mortem," as well as many others, could have been consulted in the beginning. "The knowledge had it been used at the proper time would have prevented the catastrophe."

I am not seeking to take part in any controversy over this particular case, but only to point out the evident good sense of the claim that whenever a strain of this kind is to be artificially produced upon any part of the earth's crust that is the scene of known geological defects, the special knowledge of geologists ought to be employed in the interest of the public to detect and avert any avoidable danger. For when a major dam in a lofty situation gives way thousands of lives and millions worth of property are imperilled.

Dr. Longwell is quite right in suggesting that the proposed special training in geology of all civil engineering students, while right enough in itself, would not cover the need, for, "it cannot be expected that the student will become proficient as an engineer and as a geologist at the same time."

But, as he also suggests, if the engineering student gets sufficient instruction in geology to give him a basis for appreciating the geological problems that will confront him in his work, such appreciation "will serve to emphasize in his mind the need for co-operation with highly trained geologists."

And all this only makes clearer the separation that the demands of modern intensified knowledge create between the proficients in different branches of science. No great modern structure of any kind can be erected without the co-operation of many different experts, and when their work is not properly correlated, or some of them are ignored, the results may be calamitous.

When some people pay a compliment they act as though they want a receipt for it.

Money talks, of course, but a nickel has reached the point where it is practically dumb.

When a man gets the last word in an argument with a woman, it's because she gives it to him.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Give Your Enemies a Break

IF you spent less time looking for faults in others and more time in correcting your own mistakes, you might get along better.

There is not so much difference in the general run of people.

Looking from many standpoints you will be more and more impressed with the truth of this statement.

However, you have spent the greater part of your time, perhaps, thinking how much better you are than some of your friends.

But are you?

You have not some of their faults, but you may have others as bad or possibly worse.

They may have serious faults; yours may be less vital.

Nevertheless this does not make you better than your associates.

You have quite enough disagreeable qualities to make you undesirable to more persons than you guess.

Why don't you spend more time seeing good in your enemies?

You might be surprised to know that it is largely your own attitude that has made some appear to be your enemies.

Think less of self, more of others and strive to improve, then you will not only have friends but you will find yourself more charitable.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Myself

THIS is the only self I know,
A self erect and young and proud
That, dauntless, through the years will go
With faith unshaken, head unbowed.

This is the only self I own,
Though other selves may mock and plead,
It is the better self, alone,
Whose dreams I build, whose hopes I heed.

Untouched by folly, fear or sin,
Unstirred by any winds of strife,
This is the self that rules within
My inmost citadel of life.

Great Passages from the Bible

Vanity of Riches Without Use

(Ecclesiastes 6)

THERE is an evil which I have seen under the sun, and it is common among men:

A man to whom God hath given riches, wealth, and honour, so that he wanteth nothing for his soul of all that he desireth, yet God giveth him not power to eat thereof, but a stranger eateth it: this is vanity, and it is an evil disease.

If a man beget an hundred children, and live many years, so that the days of his years be many, and his soul be not filled with good, and also that he have no burial; I say, that an untimely birth is better than he.

For he cometh in with vanity, and departeth in darkness, and his name shall be covered with darkness.

Moreover he hath not seen the sun, nor known any thing: this hath more rest than the other.

Yea, though he live a thousand years twice told, yet hath he seen no good: do not all go to one place?

All the labour of man is for his mouth, and yet the appetite is not filled.

For what hath the wise more than the fool? what hath the poor, that knoweth to walk before the living?

Better is the sight of the eyes than the wandering of the desire: this is also vanity and vexation of spirit.

That which hath been is named already, and it is known that it is man: neither may he contend with him that is mightier than he.

Seeing there be many things that increase vanity, what is man the better?

For who knoweth what is good for man in this life, all the days of his vain life which he spendeth as a shadow? for who can tell a man what shall be after him under the sun?

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was a rich fellow in the movie business that built himself a new house. Then he hired some decorators and some buyers, and got them to buy a lot of stuff to put in the house. He was showing one of his friends around the house after everything was in place.

"These here pictures is all old masters," he says. "That Frenchy looking guy in the big frame is one of my ancestors."

"Shake," says his friend. "He came near being one of mine. Just missed it."

"Is that so? Some romance, doubtless. Tell me about it."

"Oh, no romance. But I bid three hundred dollars for him, and your agent went me fifty better and got him."

An Awkward Landing

FREDDIE is a boy of five years, and he has a little brother who is just beginning to walk. The younger brother's name is Frank, and while Freddie likes him in a certain way, his nose has been rather out of joint since his arrival. The other day he said to his mother:

"Did baby come from heaven?"

"Yes, my boy," replied the mother.

"Well, then," said the young hopeful, "he must have landed on his feet; that's what makes him so bowlegged."

Any Excuse!

THE vicar's wife was paying a visit to one of her husband's parishioners.

During the conversation her eye alighted on a pile of bottles very poorly camouflaged in a corner.

"Oh," she said suspiciously, "are you giving a party to some friends, Mrs. Thurst?"

Her hostess crimsoned under the direct gaze. Then she looked at the bottles.

"No, ma'am," she replied. "My 'usband works at the brewery, yer see, and that's 'is' 'omework."—London Answers.

School

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

The school is about the finest institution in the world.

It is the greatest thing that social evolution has produced.

What more ideal group could there be than a number of people, young or old, gathered together for the purpose of study!

Think of having nothing to do but study, no working for a living, no striving for social precedence, and no war.

Somebody has said that if Socrates were alive today and should visit any of our cities, he would not be surprised at the churches, for they had temples in Greece, neither would he be surprised at our state houses and court houses, for they had public buildings of old; but he would be amazed to find that many of our most splendid edifices were school houses. That would be an entirely new and modern note. Greece and Rome had nothing like it.

To be sure, there were schools in those days, but education was for the few. Teachers existed who gathered their little coterie of disciples about them, but no such thing as a scheme for general education existed.

Some people have that old notion of education yet. A president of a college in New England once told me that college was not for every man, but for the chosen few. A good many boys, he said, were simply wasting their time at college. They had better be plowing.

Unconsciously this was a condemnation of his school. If he meant that every boy was not cut out to be a member of the learned professions, perhaps he was quite correct.

In olden days schools were only for gentlemen and the satellites of gentlemen, doctors to wait on them when they were sick, lawyers to manage their affairs, and preachers to save their souls, if any.

Nowadays, however, education is thought to be a good thing also for the engineer, mechanic, laborer and merchant. And colleges should be so organized as to prepare not only for the learned professions, but also to train those who seek other pursuits.

Schools are not only to prepare us for enjoying our leisure, but for doing our work. An Irish wash woman opposed the Gary system because, she said, "I don't want to have my boy taught to work. I want him to go to school and git smart so he won't have to work."

The school must be the most flexible of all institutions. It must take hold of any kind of a human being and develop him. It must not be a Procrustean bed, which all children must fit or not be "suitable for college," it must be so fluid that it will adapt itself to any personality.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK is crammed full of smart folks. Now someone has opened a jewelry store in the Ziegfeld Theater Building, midway between the stage entrance and the theater entrance. The window is filled with gorgeous diamonds big enough to send a thrill down the spine of Peggy Joyce.

As one of the chorus remarked today: "If candy and flowers won't, diamonds will."

Miss Grace King, of Philadelphia, says that students at Columbia University are well dressed and not too dignified, but that they lack the all important "it."

As there are 14,000 summer students, at Columbia this year and they are from over 40 countries, the remark would indicate that "it" is pretty scarce, and not too prevalent in educational centers, where women are bent upon learning from something besides experience.

A girl stenographer on Wall street won the prize for making the best corn muffins. And she passes many a delicatessen on her way home each day!

The guess is she won't stenog very many years.

The new fall hats are tight around the forehead, and down on both sides like the things Cleopatra used to wear. If there is anything that Cleo did that the modern miss has forgotten she will do it—just give her time.

A woman tried to tell me yesterday that there are places in New York so very exclusive that they won't sell you anything unless they know who you are.

I know the only fun some of the salespeople have is ritzing the customers—but I'd hate to go into any place in New York with plenty of money expecting them to refuse it because they didn't know me.

A pretty brown-eyed lady says she can stand married life as long as she has some man interested in her, but she would have to get a divorce if her husband objected.

Tie that—if you can.

A young woman stood in the zoo looking at the hippopotamus eating hay.

"Ugh!" she shuddered. "This is my day off and that looks exactly like my boss. Let's get out."

And they got.

An old lady goes into an antique jewelry shop and talks business to the man behind the counter. He took what she had and gave her some money. She came out looking a bit sad and hungry, and she walked slowly up the street, as if she wouldn't care much if she didn't get across the street in time.

I looked into the window and saw trays of old jewelry, and I wondered if they all came from people like the little old lady.

I thought of the woman who went to a pawn broker's home in Chicago once, and asked him to give her just a few days more to redeem her diamond engagement ring. It was all she had and she had pawned it when her husband was ill. Later he died. The pawn broker said he could do nothing. She told him that some day something would happen to him—worse than what was happening to her. She felt sure of it.

When his son was killed she went to his attorney and told this story of retribution.
